SC questions EC on voter roll deletions, citizenship

Top court asks poll body if its decision to remove voters from electoral rolls could lead to an investigation into their right to remain in India; EC says voters excluded in SIR have right to appeal

Krishnadas Rajagopal
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Tuesday asked the Election Commission (EC) whether an Electoral Registration Officer (ERO)'s decision to strike a person off the electoral rolls after an "inquisitorial" enquiry into his citizenship under the special intensive revision (SIR) exercise could be referred to by the Centre to commence an investigation into the individual's right to remain in India or be deported.

Justice Joymalya Bagchi, a member of the Division Bench headed by Chief Justice Surya Kant, asked whether EROs could exclude a person from the electoral rolls even before the Centre took a final call to "strip him of the colour of citizenship".

> Is it required under the scheme of Citizenship Act that his [ERO's] finding be referred for an appropriate decision?... can you take away his [a voter's] right till a decision is taken by the Central government?
> JUSTICE JOYMALYA BAGCHI
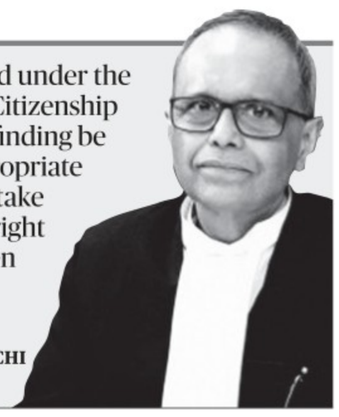
> Supreme Court judge



The questions from the court gained significance as draft electoral rolls published in nine States and three Union Territories, including West Bengal, Uttar Pradesh, and Tamil Nadu, witnessed the deletion of nearly 6.5 crore names in the second phase of the SIR process.

The queries from the Bench followed submissions made by senior advocate Rakesh Dwivedi that Article 326 (the right of adult Indian citizens to vote), the Representation of the People Act, and the Registration of Electors Rules of 1960 collectively empower the EC, through the EROs, to conduct an inquisitorial enquiry into citizenship for specific purposes.

Mr. Dwivedi said the poll body was entitled to verify citizenship for the purpose of inclusion on the electoral rolls. It was for the Union government to decide if a person would stay on in India or be deported.

"He [ERO] can enquire. But after he records a finding, is it required under the scheme of Citizenship Act that his finding be referred for an appropriate decision and steps by the Central government? And till then... can you take away his right till a decision is taken by the Central government stripping him of the colour of citizenship?" Justice Bagchi asked.

Delivery platforms to stop 10-minute service after Ministry's appeal

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

Delivery platforms Blinkit, Zepto, Zomato, and Swiggy are learnt to have decided to remove the 10-minute delivery system from their applications after an intervention by Union Labour Minister Mansukh Mandaviya.

Gig and platform workers went on a one-day strike on December 31 and one of their demands was to end the delivery of items in 10 minutes, citing accidents and health issues. A senior official said Mr. Mandaviya had raised the issue at a meeting held with the aggregators last week. The Ministry sources told The Hindu that Blinkit has removed the 10-minute delivery promise from its branding and others are expected to follow suit in the coming days.

"They told the Minister that it [10-minute delivery] is being made possible through warehouses at various locations and not by putting pressure on workers. However, Minister urged them to to stop this branding practice considering the health and welfare of delivery workers and the companies agreed," the official said.

SC differs on sanction to try public servants

Krishnadas Rajagopal
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Tuesday delivered a split verdict on the legality of a provision in an anti-corruption law which mandates prior sanction before prosecuting public servants.

Justice B.V. Nagarathna concluded that Section 17A of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, was plainly unconstitutional, while Justice K.V. Viswanathan, the puisne judge on the Division Bench, said that sanction must be decided by an independent authority such as the Lok Pal or the Lok Ayukta.

Policy paralysis

Justice Viswanathan said the mere possibility of abuse of an otherwise valid provision cannot be a ground for declaring it unconstitutional. He compared striking down Section 17A to "throwing the baby out with the bathwater".

"If honest public servants are not given a basic assurance that decisions taken by them will not be subjected to frivolous complaints, it is the nation that will suffer. Public servants will resort to a play-it-safe syndrome, and that will result in policy paralysis. The panacea of striking down will turn out to be worse than the disease," Justice Viswanathan wrote in his opinion.

He directed that an independent inquiry of the facts of a corruption complaint would be ideal before a grant of sanction.

Trump tells Iran protesters to 'take over institutions'

Stanly Johny

U.S. President Donald Trump on Tuesday doubled down on his threat of intervention in protest-hit Iran, telling anti-government protesters to "take over institutions" and that "help is on its way".

Mr. Trump also said that any country that does business with Iran will face a tariff rate of 25% on any trade with the U.S., amid the biggest anti-government protests Iran has seen in years. "This Order is final and conclusive," Mr. Trump said in a social media post without providing any further detail.

Air travellers heading to Paris stranded in Turkmenistan due to aircraft glitch

Hemanth C.S.
BENGALURU

What was supposed to be a 10-hour direct flight from Bengaluru to Paris onboard an Air France flight has turned out to be a nearly two-day ordeal for passengers, as they have been stranded midway in Turkmenistan.

An Air France flight from Bengaluru to Paris which departed from the Kempegowda International Airport (KIA) on January 12 has been diverted to Ashgabat in Turkmenistan leaving hundreds of passengers stranded there.

The ordeal for the passengers of the flight started at Bengaluru itself as the flight take off was delayed for several hours here.

Air France AF 191 which was scheduled to depart from Bengaluru at 2 a.m. on January 12 was initially delayed for more than 21 hours at the airport due to a technical glitch.

Delayed

KIA sources said that the flight's departure was delayed for technical reasons and it took off from Bengaluru at around 10.50 p.m. on January 12.

En route to Paris the flight is said to have encountered an engine problem following which it was diverted to the Ashgabat International Airport. The passengers onboard the flight have been stranded there since then.

Kin flay airlines

Relatives of passengers took to X (formerly Twitter) to post about the flight's diversion.

"@airfrance @DGCAIndia My brother's flight AF191 was supposed to depart at 2am on 12th Jan, got rescheduled to 10pm due to technical issues and now got diverted / stranded at Ashgabat, Turkmenistan. It is expected to depart at 1pm on 14th Jan. No visa," Aniket @joshianiket4u posted on X.

Embassy reaches out

Meanwhile officials from the Embassy of India, Ashgabat, have met the stranded Indian passengers and offered them assistance

"Consular Officials of @IndiainTurkmen1 met the Indian passengers of Air France Flight AF 191 which made an emergency landing at Ashgabat Airport earlier today and assured them of Embassy's full support for their smooth onward journey to Paris," the Official X Account of the Embassy of India said in a post.

Kohli 2.0 — free-flowing, exhilarating and still the run(ning)-machine

His reputation as the ultimate master of the chase is no secret; it's not that he doesn't put a price on his wicket anymore, it's just that he has voluntarily chosen to redefine his approach

GETTY IMAGES

R. Kaushik

Virat Kohli has been around for so long that you'd think he doesn't have any more surprises in store. But in the last few weeks, he has revealed a new, different avatar that is as much a reflection of where he thinks he is at in his cricketing career as anything else.

It doesn't bear elaborate repetition that Kohli is now only a one-format international - he has been so since last May, when he added Test retirement to Twenty20 International sanyas after the victorious World Cup campaign in the Americas in June 2024. He will still play 20-over cricket, for Royal Challengers Bengaluru in a couple of months' time, but on the country vs country spectrum, it is only the 50-over format for Kohli to reiterate his greatness and his genius.

Kohli has terrific – slightly downgraded from stunning in Tests after a largely unfulfilling final few years that dragged his average down to a still impressive 46.85 – records in all three formats at the highest level, but in the one-day variant, he has been the unquestioned lord and master since his India debut in August 2008. There has hardly been an extended spell of frugal returns and low impact. Those so inclined will insist that he cracked the 50-over code very early in his career and has made the most of his early smarts. Those slightly less charitable might allude to the one-day game as being the easiest of the three widespread versions, though what's easy for one might not necessarily be for another.

Kohli's reputation as the ultimate master of the chase is no secret. No target, it would seem, is beyond India's reach till the battler from Delhi is in the middle, calculating and recalibrating and planning and working out the finer details, all with effortless ease. He has pulled off the so-called impossible so many times, with that attention to the minutest of factors that have allowed him to build exponentially through the innings and then explode with practised flair towards the end, when too his famed speed between the wickets has been his steadfast ally.

There is a new avatar of Kohli now, a more free-flowing version that is at once exhilarating and educative. Exhilarating, because the 38-year-old is no longer content to just build towards a frenzy, educative because he has taken on a new challenge to rouse himself into action at this late stage of what has been a magnificent run in international cricket. Kohli has decided that the days of conservatism at the start of an innings need to be buried in the past. He has therefore been a more proactive force right from the get-go, looking to impose himself on the bowling and immediately seeking to transfer whatever pressure might have been created from the fall of the first wicket back on to the opposition.

He can do that because, well, he is Kohli. He doesn't charge the bowling on a wing and a prayer, attempting to smack the cover off the ball because, well, that isn't Kohli. But from risk-averse whilst bedding in, he has embraced greater enterprise, making a concerted push to call the shots at a time when the bowlers might otherwise have begun to think that they had a little edge by having dismissed one of Rohit Sharma or captain Shubman Gill.

The change of tack owes itself to perhaps more than just one reason. It's not that Kohli doesn't put a price on his wicket anymore, it's just that he has voluntarily chosen to redefine his approach because he is convinced that's what is in the best interests of the team. In an oblique sort of way, that's a huge show of confidence in the batters to follow - Shreyas Iyer, K.L. Rahul, Axar Patel/Ravindra Jadeja, and Hardik Pandya whenever he is available and/or selected. Kohli no longer feels he has to be around to finish off the chase, or that taking early risks will set the side back so badly that it will be unable to recover. At the same time, because he is so much at home in the one-day game, because he knows his game inside out and because he is so good at sizing up conditions and the bowling so quickly, he is also aware that the damage he can do by building on the gains or otherwise of the opening salvo is unquantifiable.

In the last 10 months alone, Kohli has both finished chases and fallen to an aerial stroke with the finish line still some distance away. The former is something everyone has come to expect of the former captain; the latter will continue to come as a surprise till such time that Kohli walks out to bat because he has spoiled Indian supporters by being at the end far too often.

Let's take the Champions Trophy in Dubai last February-March as the starting point of an admittedly limited sample size of 12 innings. In his dozen forays to the batting crease, Kohli has reeled off three hundreds and four half-centuries. The first of those centuries came, almost inevitably, against Pakistan in Dubai. Kohli walked in at 31 for one after the fifth over with India chasing 242 for victory, and duly got the job done, striking the winning four off Khushdil Shah that also took him to his 51st three-figure knock in ODIs.

A little over a week later, in the semifinal against Australia, India faced a more demanding ask - 265. Australia have been India's bete noires in the knockout stages of ICC events too many times for the quarterfinal victory in the 2011 World Cup to stand out as consolation. This was the first knockout outing between the sides since the Aussies shattered a billion hearts into a zillion pieces in Ahmedabad in the final of the 2023 World Cup. India had overcome the Aussie challenge in the Super Eights of the T20 World Cup in the Caribbean alright, but this was a knockout game, this was payback time in the same 50-over format.

Kohli's entry point was identical to the Pakistan game - India were 30 when Gill was dismissed off the last ball of the fifth over. The stakes can never be anything but sky-high when India face off against Pakistan, but there was a different feel to the semifinal. It was Australia, pesky, annoying and a bugbear of sorts. At stake was a place in the final. So Kohli bedded down, cautious and controlled and singularly risk-free. His 100 not out against Pakistan, off 111 deliveries, contained seven fours; 84 against Australia came off 98 deliveries with only five fours when, with India needing 40 off 44 with six wickets in hand on a tricky if not hugely demanding surface, Kohli uncharacteristically threw his hand away.

Picking leggie Adam Zampa's googly, Kohli backed himself to deposit the ball over long-on but perhaps his over-keenness contributed to him lobbing the ball to the fielder at the boundary. Kohli was furious with himself and spent a few anxious moments on the balcony with the rest of his mates until the calm of Rahul and fire of Pandya got India home.

An aberration, we told ourselves, a word that we fell back on when, in the first of three ODIs against South Africa in Ranchi in November, he smacked two sixes inside the first 10 overs.

Little did we know then that this was the revamped Kohli that had decided to reveal itself. Ranchi was treated to seven sixes as Kohli hammered 135 off 120 deliveries. Not in a chase, but while batting first. Kohli isn't a reluctant six-hitter, but he isn't in the Rohit league - who is, actually? In his first 293 ODI innings, Kohli had 152 sixes - on an average, 0.52 sixes per knock. The last four, against South Africa and now New Zealand, have already yielded 13.

"I back myself to counterattack now rather than just trying to play the situation in because some ball has your name on it," he rationalised after his 91-ball 93 in Vadodara on Sunday when, again to everyone's surprise, he was out playing in the air with victory still 67 away and one of the batters to follow (Washington Sundar) a doubtful starter. "So, there's no point waiting around for too long. But at the same time, you don't play outrageous shots. You still stick to your strengths, but you back yourself enough to put the opposition on the back foot." And that's where the genesis of the slightly rejigged iteration lies - the desire to dominate, to wean away any potential pressure that comes with the loss of a wicket, to stamp his authority from the off even if it means there is a little more danger of being dismissed early in the piece compared to the past. In so many ways, it is an acknowledgement from the man himself that he doesn't feel the need to bear the cross all the time because there is enough depth and experience and quality and mettle in the others to follow. That's not to say that Kohli is shirking responsibility or has suddenly chosen to go all rogue and gung-ho. It's another step in the journey of evolution, a process that Kohli is still committed to despite 557 appearances and more than 28,000 runs at the highest level.

Kohli embarking on this adventure, for that's what it truly is, is a testament to his zest to keep pushing himself and a humbling reminder to the mere mortals that the road to progress should not ever come to a dead end. He could so easily have coasted in the wake of his well-founded reputation and continued to be the celebrated chasemeister that instils such dread in all comers, and no one would have even blinked. But after so many bites at the cherry, Kohli still isn't content merely coasting. Then again, that's what we should have expected of a phenomenon to whom setting benchmarks and standing out as the example to emulate are second nature.

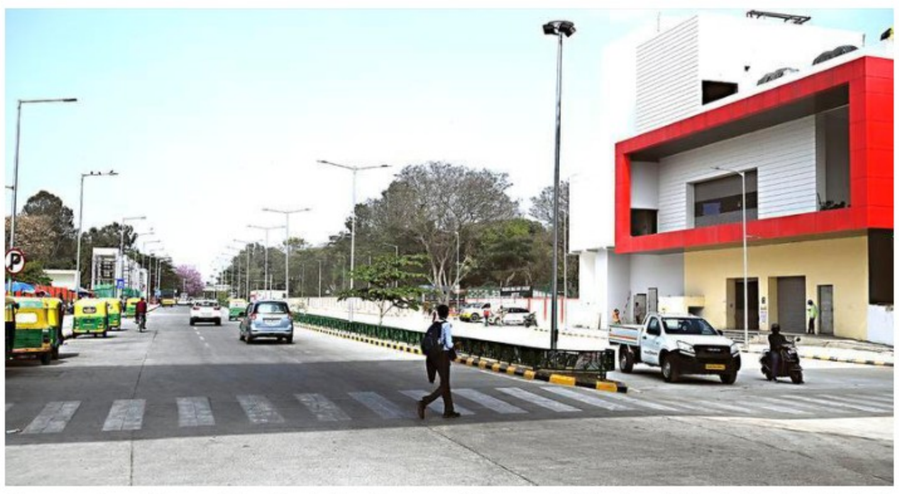
Relief as Kamaraj Road reopens, but fresh traffic chaos feared on M.G. Road

The road was fully reopened on January 2, restoring two-way traffic between Cubbon Road and M.G. Road

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU



The reopening of Kamaraj Road has helped decongest Commercial Street and Brigade Road, which had borne the brunt of diverted traffic since the road was shut in June 2019 for metro construction works.
K. MURALI KUMAR

Commuters in central Bengaluru have cautiously welcomed the full reopening of Kamaraj Road after nearly seven years. While the move has eased congestion on M.G. Road and surrounding stretches, the relief is expected to be temporary, with the Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board (BWSSB) planning to dig up M.G. Road for pipeline relaying works, raising concerns about renewed traffic snarls.

BWSSB is set to install new water supply and sewerage pipelines along both sides of the stretch between Brigade Road and Trinity Circle.

Kamaraj Road was fully reopened on January 2, restoring two-way traffic between Cubbon Road and M.G. Road. The reopening of Kamaraj Road has helped decongest Commercial Street and Brigade Road, which had borne the brunt of diverted traffic since the road was shut in June 2019 for the construction of the M.G. Road Underground Metro Station on the Gottigere-Nagawara (Pink Line) corridor.

Several commuters have said that the reopening has improved connectivity in the area, especially for those travelling between Cubbon Road and M.G. Road. "For years, this stretch was a bottleneck. Now, at least there is some breathing space, and traffic is not spilling endlessly onto Brigade Road and Commercial Street," said Shankar K.S., a daily office commuter. However, not everyone is convinced that the situation has improved. Balaji R., who regularly drives through the central business district, noted that traffic signal coordination remains a major issue. "Driving on Cubbon Road has actually become worse after Kamaraj Road reopened. The signal near the junction now takes five to eight minutes to turn green, and vehicles pile up quickly during peak hours," he said.

Adding to commuters' worries is the impending BWSSB pipeline work on M.G. Road, which many fear will undo the progress made by the reopening of Kamaraj Road. "Just when one road opens, another is dug up. If M.G. Road is disrupted again, the entire area will slip back into chaos," said Mohan Babu, another commuter.

Commuters have also expressed disappointment over the lack of greenery along the newly reopened stretch. Many blamed Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Ltd. (BMRCL) for failing to restore the tree cover that once lined Kamaraj Road. "The road surface is well laid and smooth, but it feels bare and harsh. Earlier, this stretch had trees that offered shade and a pleasant drive. Now, it looks completely desolate," Mr. Shankar added.

Beautification

BMRCL officials said that landscaping and greenery along the stretch would be taken up in the coming months as part of the post-construction restoration work.

Scrap dealer hacked to death in city

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

According to the police, there were eight to 10 attackers, who came by auto and on motorcycles

A man was hacked to death, allegedly over an old grudge, in the Bandepalya police station limits on Monday. The deceased has been identified as Shabbir, 29, a resident of Hosa Road. His father is a retired Assistant Sub-Inspector who served in the Karnataka State Reserve Police (KSRP).

According to the police, the incident occurred at around 11 p.m. on the Mangammanapalya Main Road.

Shabbir ran a scrap shop near his residence and had gone to Victoria Hospital earlier in the night to visit a relative undergoing treatment. While returning home with his friends in an autorickshaw, their vehicle was intercepted near a petrol station.

According to the police, eight to 10 assailants, who arrived in autorickshaws and on motorcycles, blocked the auto Shabbir was travelling in and forcibly dragged him on to the road. He was then allegedly assaulted with weapons in public, sustaining grievous injuries. Shabbir succumbed to his injuries on the spot, following which the attackers fled.

The probe revealed that Shabbir and the accused knew each other and had previously been involved in a quarrel over a trivial issue, which reportedly escalated into a grudge. A murder case has been registered at the Bandepalya police station, and multiple teams have been formed to trace the accused. The police are verifying CCTV footage from the area to identify and apprehend the suspects.

Train passenger drugged, robbed; two arrested

The police have advised passengers not to accept food or beverages from strangers during train journeys and to remain vigilant

The Baiyyappanahalli Railway Police have arrested two habitual offenders for allegedly stealing valuables from a train passenger after sedating him.

The accused have been identified as Safar and Sataram, natives of Bihar. They are currently being interrogated to ascertain their possible involvement in similar crimes.

According to the police, the passenger, identified as Krishna Kumar, a native of Bihar, was on his way to Danapur on January 2, when he became acquainted with two strangers during the journey.

Drugged tea

The duo introduced themselves as fellow natives of Bihar and gradually gained his trust. During a halt at a railway station, they got down and brought tea for him. Unaware of their intentions, Krishna Kumar consumed the tea. The two men also had tea with him.

However, the tea had been allegedly mixed with a sedative. The accused stole his gold chain, ₹4,000 cash, and his bag.

Following a complaint, the Baiyyappanahalli Railway Police registered a case and launched an investigation.

Subsequently, the police arrested them while they were allegedly attempting a similar theft on another passenger.

What an edible insects stall revealed about acceptance, 'normal' food

Despite their nutritional and environmental benefits, people are increasingly moving away from insect-based foods; urbanisation has created both physical and cultural distance from such practices; many younger generations that have grown up or settled in cities are often unaware that insects are eaten across several parts of India

Sahanashree R.
BENGALURU

Why does the idea of eating insects provoke discomfort, even before taste or nutrition enters the conversation? At an edible insects stall during a food mela at the Science Gallery, Bengaluru, this question surfaced repeatedly as visitors negotiated curiosity, disgust, and the boundaries of what they considered "normal" food.

Many assumed they were encountering a foreign idea. "This is eaten in other countries, right?" was a common question at the stall, curated under the exhibition theme 'Calorie'. Few realised that eating insects has long been part of food cultures within India itself.

Entomophagy, the practice of eating insects, is often imagined as something that happens elsewhere, outside India. Yet insects have been consumed across several Indian States for generations. This is particularly visible in parts of Northeast India, such as Nagaland and Arunachal Pradesh, where insects are eaten seasonally and sold in markets like Dimapur's Mava Market.

At the stall, visitors were offered cricket cookies, chilli garlic crickets, and fried silkworms. Curiosity often preceded commitment: nearly 60% of those who tasted the insects were trying for the first time. For many, the experience was marked by uncertainty followed by surprise. "It was my first time eating insects, so I didn't know what to expect," said a student who tried the fried silkworms. "But it turned out to be a good experience."

Protein source: Entomophagy, the practice of eating insects, is often imagined as something that happens elsewhere, outside India. Yet insects have been consumed across several Indian States for generations. SAHANASHREE R.

Taste makes a difference

Taste, more than curiosity, seemed to shift perception. One visitor described the silkworm as tasting "like overcooked kidney beans", while another, who tried both chilli garlic crickets and silkworms, noted the contrast clearly: "The cricket had more flavour. The silkworm had a more eggy texture."

Beyond perception, insects are often framed as an efficient source of calories and protein in a world facing growing food demands. As populations increase and food systems strain under climate and resource pressures, edible insects are frequently cited as a sustainable alternative protein source.

Many insect species are rich in protein, vitamins and micronutrients, with a much higher proportion of their body mass being edible, around 80%, compared to about 55% for poultry. They also require significantly less land, water and feed to produce the same amount of protein. For instance, crickets need far fewer resources than conventional livestock such as sheep or broiler chickens, making them an efficient source of protein from a production standpoint.

Yet despite these nutritional and environmental benefits and despite insects being part of many food cultures, people are increasingly moving away from them. Urbanisation has created both physical and cultural distance from such practices. Many younger generations who have grown up or settled in cities are often unaware that insects are eaten across several parts of India, sometimes even within their own home States.

Insects are often framed as an efficient source of calories and protein in a world facing growing food demands; as populations increase and food systems strain under climate and resource pressures, edible insects are frequently cited as a sustainable alternative protein source

Distance and disconnect

During conversations at the stall, insect-eating was frequently framed as something "indigenous" acknowledged but distanced. It was seen as belonging to rural communities rather than to urban food cultures. In this framing, eating insects became less about nutrition and more about class: it did not fit into dominant ideas of modern, aspirational food.

Ironically, in the regions where these practices continue, insect-based foods are neither novel nor marginal. They are seasonal, familiar, and often tied to specific occasions and generations. Yet from an urban lens, these foods are frequently dismissed as backward, revealing how ideas of progress shape what is considered acceptable to eat.

Some visitors recognised this disconnect. "People should start overlooking the typical stereotypes and experiment more," said a working professional, reflecting on how discomfort often precedes experience. Others framed the hesitation against sustainability concerns. "It's a sustainable protein source that is cost-effective to produce and with low environmental impact," noted another visitor, pointing to the gap between environmental awareness and everyday food choices.

Even among visitors who were open to the idea, acceptance was often accompanied by hesitation. Questions emerged not just about taste or sustainability, but about sufficiency and substitution. "I'm wondering how filling this would be as a complete meal," one visitor said. "I don't know if it can really replace the food groups we have now."

Others echoed this caution. "I don't see it becoming a staple food," a student visitor noted, while still describing the stall as "a good initiative for public health." Alongside this, some visitors raised ethical questions about knowledge and credit. "If this practice is being promoted," one remarked, "it's important to acknowledge the communities and regions it comes from."

Low-pressure spaces

The stall did not resolve these questions; it was not meant to. Instead, it made visible the assumptions, hesitations and hierarchies that shape what we call food. It raised quieter, more uncomfortable questions: why some foods are embraced while others are dismissed, why sustainability is easier to discuss than to practise, and why foods familiar to many communities still feel unfamiliar in urban spaces.

From my perspective, making insect-based foods more acceptable is as much about form and familiarity as it is about nutrition. At the stall, insects were intentionally offered in different formats, both ground into cookies and served whole, flavoured with garlic and chilli. Presenting insects in processed forms appeared to lower psychological barriers, allowing visitors to engage with taste and texture without the immediate discomfort often associated with whole insects. Public-facing experiments like food stalls can play an important role in this process by creating low-pressure spaces where curiosity can precede judgement.

As Priyadarsanan Dharma Rajan, who works on edible insects, noted, his lab, the Insect Biosystematics and Conservation (IBC) Laboratory at ATREE, is increasingly focusing on developing sustainable ways of rearing insects. Establishing standardised rearing protocols allows insects to be produced at scale rather than harvested from the wild, reducing pressure on natural populations while ensuring consistency, safety and nutritional quality. In this sense, changing how insects are produced may be as important as changing how they are perceived.

QUESTION CORNER

Onward and moonward

Q: What is the NASA Artemis II mission?

A: Artemis II is the first crewed mission of NASA's Artemis programme. It will be the first time humans will travel to the vicinity of the moon since 1972. The 10-day flight will test the Space Launch System (SLS) rocket and the Orion spacecraft to ensure all life-support and navigation systems are safe for future lunar missions.

On January 9, NASA said the mission was in its final preparation stages. The earliest targeted launch date is February 6, 2026. NASA has also identified launch windows across February, March, and April 2026. The rocket stack is expected to be rolled out to Launch Pad 39B at the Kennedy Space Centre in mid-January for the final tests.

Artemis II has a four-person crew. The commander is Reid Wiseman; the pilot, Victor Glover; and Christina Koch and Jeremy Hansen are the mission specialists. Mr. Hansen is from the Canadian Space Agency, the rest are from NASA.

Rather than land on the moon, the crew will fly in a hybrid free-return trajectory. Specifically, after liftoff onboard the SLS, the Orion spacecraft will orbit the earth twice to check life support and manual handling capabilities. Then, it will travel around 10,300 km beyond the far side of the moon, after which gravity will pull the spacecraft back towards the earth for a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean.

BENGALURU

Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Ltd. (BMRCL) introduced mobile QR-based Periodical Travel Passes for 1-day, 3-day, and 5-day unlimited travel effective from January 15.

These unlimited travel passes were available only as Contactless Smart Cards (CSC) with a ₹50 refundable security deposit. QR-based passes have been introduced as part of its ongoing efforts to enhance commuter convenience and promote digital ticketing, BMRCL said.

With the launch of mobile QR passes, passengers can now enjoy unlimited travel without any security deposit, as they are issued digitally on mobile phones.

Key features

There is no security deposit for these passes. Digital passes eliminate the ₹50 deposit required for smart cards.

"These passes are easy to purchase. They can be purchased through the Namma Metro Official app. On other mobile applications, this facility will be made available shortly," BMRCL said.

Commuters can scan the QR code displayed on their mobile phones at Automatic Fare Collection (AFC) gates for entry and exit.

"BMRCL encourages commuters to shift to mobile QR-based passes to save time, avoid queues for card issuance and refunds, and experience a more seamless travel journey. This initiative is another important step towards our vision of a fully digital and commuter-friendly metro system," BMRCL said.

Is the government seeking phones' source code?

What is the issue around the government seeking source code data from companies? What is source code, and why don't companies want to give access to it? Will keeping the code open for review risk security threats and cyberattacks? What has the government said?

EXPLAINER

Aroon Deep

The story so far:
The newswire agency Reuters reported that the Indian government was contemplating a requirement for smartphone makers to disclose their source code to third party testing agencies, and make this code open for review. A further requirement the agency reported was that phone makers would have to notify the government before pushing major software updates to user devices. The Union government has downplayed the nature of these conversations, and refuted the source code demand allegation.

What is source code?
Source code is the core repository of software programmes and their associated digital assets that drives a digital system. While some parts of the code, especially of Android phones, is open to begin with, there are significant modifications and adaptations that phone manufacturers make to that codebase. Also, each firm jealously guards the technology driving these respective changes. Source code is kept secret not just for commercial reasons, but also as a security measure. If a software system's complete inner workings are visible to a malicious attacker, then the system is at risk of being probed for weaknesses that can be exploited, and can lead to data breaches and other types of cyberattacks.

Why is such a demand controversial?
It is highly unusual for source code of any kind of system to be disclosed outside a company, except perhaps in sensitive fields like defence, and that too in specific countries. Apple Inc., for instance, has not disclosed its source code to the Chinese government, even as the firm has carved out policies specific to that country to make user data stored on the cloud potentially more accessible in response to legal requests.

REUTERS

These reports have come shortly after a bruising episode for the government; just weeks before, the Department of Telecommunications (DoT) was at the receiving end of massive political and public pushback due to an order it sent to smartphone manufacturers to "pre-install" the spam reporting app Sanchar Saathi. There were widespread concerns that the app could be used for snooping at worst, and represent a security threat by a third party attacker at best. This was also a demand global smartphone makers generally don't entertain.

But source code disclosure would be a far more intrusive demand, as it would require smartphone makers to essentially expose their entire code base to a third party. Cyber attackers that find and take advantage of software vulnerabilities often do so with aspects of computer systems that are visible externally; internal visibility would greatly amplify the risks of such vulnerabilities being found, especially if the source code includes detailed documentation on a system's inner workings. As such, mobile phone operating systems, even if they are running on open source Android, do not expose every detail of their actual implementation.

Is the Indian government demanding that source code be made public?
In 2023, the National Centre for Communication Security (NCSS), under the DoT, finalised a document called an Indian Telecom Security Assurance Requirement (ITSAR) for "consumer equipment". ITSARs are technical standards used in the Mandatory Testing and Certification of Telecommunication Equipment (MTCTE) framework, a key bureaucratic step for importing telecom gear into India.

The MTCTE framework stems from the Indian Telegraph (Amendment) Rules, 2017. However, shortly after the Telecommunications Act, 2023 was passed, the DoT and the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (MeitY) decided that the MTCTE regime should be done away with for smartphones, which already go through a certification process for India administered by the Bureau of Indian Standards. A senior MeitY official told The Hindu that since the baton had now been passed to the IT Ministry, the discussions were picking up where the DoT had left off. A press statement by MeitY stated that the IT Ministry was keeping an "open mind" and would decide on what was best for the country and for consumers. The India Cellular and Electronics Association (ICEA), which represents some smartphone firms, also downplayed the seriousness of the discussions.

The Internet Freedom Foundation, a digital rights advocacy group, pushed back on that denial, pointing out that the meetings the government was holding were not transparently conducted, and that the ITSARs remain public.

"If the government claims these proposals do not exist, it must explain the specific documentation currently hosted on its own website and also disclose the minutes of meetings," IFF said in a statement.

"IFF asserts that "stakeholder consultation" cannot be limited to closed-door meetings with big tech giants. If the PIB's claim that "no final regulations have been framed" is true, then the government should have no hesitation in releasing the current draft of the ITSAR for public scrutiny immediately. We reassert the need for transparency and an open public consultation."

Are India's small towns being increasingly urbanised?

Are small towns an alternative to the over-accumulation witnessed in the country's metro cities?

Tikender Singh Panwar

The story so far:
India continues to narrate its urban future through the loud vocabulary of megacities. But a quieter and far more consequential transformation is unfolding. Of India's nearly 9,000 census and statutory towns, barely 500 qualify as large cities. The overwhelming majority are small towns, with populations below 1,00,000. This proliferation of small towns is a structural product of India's capitalist development – and of its crisis.

How have small towns proliferated?
From the 1970s through the 1990s, capital accumulation was organised through metropolisation. Large cities became the primary sites for industrial production, state investment, infrastructure, and labour absorption. Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai, Kolkata and later Bengaluru and Hyderabad became spatial fixes for capitalism by absorbing surplus labour; concentrating consumption; and by creating conditions for accumulation. However, today, India's metros have run into the classic problem of over-accumulation. Land prices have detached from productive use, infrastructure systems are stretched beyond repair, and rising costs have become unbearable for working groups.

It is in this moment that small towns have emerged. Across India, one can see this shift. Towns like Sattenapalle in Andhra Pradesh, Dhamtari in Chhattisgarh, Barabanki in Uttar Pradesh, Hassan in Karnataka, Bongaigaon in Assam, or Una in Himachal Pradesh are now logistics nodes, agro-processing hubs, warehouse towns, construction economies, service centres and consumption markets. They absorb migrant workers pushed out of metros and rural youth with few agrarian options. These small towns are not outside the urban process; they are fully inside it. Small towns are urbanised under conditions of capitalist stress – cheaper land, pliable labour, weaker regulation, and minimal political scrutiny.

Are small towns a better alternative?
They offer no inherent emancipatory promise. What is unfolding is not inclusive growth but the urbanisation of rural poverty. Informal labour dominates – construction workers without contracts, women in home-based piecework, and youth trapped in platform economies with no security. In towns like Shahdol in Madhya Pradesh or Raichur in Karnataka, one sees new hierarchies hardening: real estate brokers, local contractors, micro-financiers and political intermediaries are controlling land and labour. This is where policy failure becomes glaring. India's flagship urban missions remain deeply metro-centric. AMRUT, even in its expanded version, effectively excludes most small towns from meaningful infrastructure investment. Water supply and sewerage projects are designed for large cities, while small towns survive on fragmented schemes and temporary fixes. The result is predictable: tanker economies flourish, groundwater is mined indiscriminately, and ecological stress deepens. Moreover, governance remains the weakest link. Small-town municipalities are underfunded and understaffed. Planning is outsourced to consultants unfamiliar with local realities and participation is reduced to procedural hearings.

What next?
The first step is political recognition. Small towns must be acknowledged as the primary frontier of India's urban future. Second, planning must be reimagined. Town-level plans must integrate housing, livelihoods, transport and ecology, rather than replicate metropolitan templates. Third, small towns need empowered municipalities, transparent budgets, and institutional space for workers' collectives, environmental actors and cooperatives. Finally, capital must be disciplined. Platform economies and digital infrastructures need regulation to ensure labour rights, local value retention and data accountability.

GBA elections will be held within SC deadline: DKS

Deputy Chief Minister says government committed to complying with the Supreme Court's order, reiterates that Congress would perform well in the elections

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Deputy Chief Minister and Bengaluru Development Minister D.K. Shivakumar on Tuesday said that the government will look into the questions raised about inadequate reservation for women in the 369 wards of the Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA). The reservation committee will be asked to rectify in case of any mistakes.

Mr. Shivakumar said that the civic polls would be conducted within the deadline stipulated by the Supreme Court and that the State government would issue the necessary directions to the State Election Commission (SEC) to facilitate the process.

Mr. Shivakumar ruled out seeking any extension of time from the Supreme Court to conduct the elections, and said the government was committed to complying with the apex court's order.

Deputy Chief Minister D K Shivakumar takes part in 45-day 'MGNREGA Bachao Sangram' against new rural jobs legislation by Congress, in Bengaluru on Tuesday SUDHAKARA JAIN

Responding to queries on technical objections raised in connection with the GBA structuring, Mr. Shivakumar said the GBA committee would look into it. The Deputy Chief Minister stated that the SEC had already submitted an affidavit to the court. "Election date issues are left to the SEC. The government will give all necessary directions. We need to conduct zilla and taluk panchayat elections, and we will do whatever is necessary under the 73rd and 74th amendments of the Constitution," he added.

He reiterated that Congress would perform well in the elections. "It is our duty to conduct elections. We are preparing new leaders by empowering party workers. We are confident that we will do well in all the five corporations," he said.

On the possibility of a "friendly fight" between the BJP and the JD(S), Mr. Shivakumar said the two parties were free to choose their course. "Let them do whatever they want, fight separately or together. There will be a direct fight if they have the same arrangement they had for parliamentary elections," he said.

As per the notification, nomination papers can be filed from January 9 to January 22, 2026, between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. at the District Panchayat Hall. Scrutiny of nominations will take place on January 23, and the last date for withdrawal of nominations is January 27.

If voting is required, polling will be held on February 4, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. followed by counting of votes at 4 p.m. in the District Panchayat Hall. The process will be completed by February 5, said officials from the Bengaluru Urban District Panchayat and the Chief Executive Officer.

Kogilu Layout demolition: Families demand swift relief, permanent housing

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Families in Kogilu Layout's Fakir Colony and Waseem Layout have requested the State government to rebuild their homes, provide compensation, and ensure permanent housing after a sudden demolition drive left them stranded on the streets.

The Kogilu Layout Slum Residents' Struggle Committee, during a press conference on Tuesday, called for temporary shelters equipped with basic facilities such as food, clean water, and toilets until permanent homes are ready. The members have further requested the government to expand the housing schemes to provide livable homes for all poor communities in Bengaluru, including migrant workers who play a crucial role in building the city.

The sudden demolition, Nandini B.K. from Dhudiyuva Janara Vedike said, has created a severe crisis for the most vulnerable, including elderly residents, pregnant women, lactating mothers, and children. "Many families are temporarily sheltered on the premises of a nearby Urdu medium school, but are not allowed to use the toilets. Most of the homes were built over several years using earnings from daily wage work or loans and losing them in just four hours has left them completely destitute," she said.

Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) demolished over 300 homes on waste disposal land, in Kogilu, Yelahanka, in Bengaluru on January 3, 2026. J. ALLEN EGENUSE

The representatives of the affected communities raised constitutional concerns, highlighting that Article 19 guarantees citizens the right to move and reside anywhere in India, and Article 21 protects the right to live with dignity. "Limiting rehabilitation based on language, region, or origin undermines these fundamental rights and puts historically marginalized communities at further risk," Gowramma, representing Janawadi Mahila Sanghatane, said.

Portal for EV charging, battery-swapping stations launched by Bescom

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The Bangalore Electricity Supply Company Limited (BESCOM) on Tuesday launched what it described as India's first land aggregator portal aimed at easing the setting up of electric vehicle (EV) charging and battery-swapping stations, with an integrated single-window system to facilitate power supply.

The digital platform, unveiled by Energy Minister K. J. George, is intended to bring landowners, government agencies, private institutions and charge point operators (CPOs) onto a common interface. Through the portal, private individuals, government departments and institutions can offer land for EV charging or battery-swapping facilities on a revenue-sharing basis, while vendors and CPOs can take responsibility for installation, operation and maintenance. BESCOM, in turn, facilitates electricity supply through a single-window digital dashboard, to reduce procedural delays and coordination issues.

The digital platform is intended to bring landowners, government agencies, private institutions and charge point operators onto a common interface.

The portal is designed to speed up the rollout of EV infrastructure by simplifying land identification and electricity connectivity, two of the key bottlenecks in setting up charging stations, officials said.

The initiative is expected to expand EV charging infrastructure across cities as well as along highway corridors, and is aligned with national clean mobility programmes such as the National Highways for Electric Vehicles (NHEV). The utility officials said the platform would support public-private partnerships and help scale up EV infrastructure.

BESCOM Managing Director N. Shivashankara said integrating land aggregation with power supply approvals would make it easier to establish EV charging and battery-swapping stations, and would also create economic opportunities at the local level.

2 senior scientists conferred with KSTA Lifetime Achievement Award

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The Lifetime Achievement Award instituted by the Karnataka Science and Technology Academy (KSTA) was awarded to two distinguished senior scientists on Tuesday.

The Prof. C.N.R. Rao - KSTA Lifetime Achievement Award was given to Ramakrishna, scientist and former director of the Zoological Survey of India (ZSI), in recognition of his contribution to the field of Science and Technology. The awardee gets ₹2 lakh worth gold medal and ₹1 lakh cash.

The KSTA Lifetime Achievement Award in Science Communication in Kannada (2023) was conferred on Sreemathi Hariprasad, former scientist at CFTRI, for her exceptional service in popularising Science, Technology, Engineering, Agriculture, and Medicine (STEAM) in the Kannada language. The awardee gets ₹1 lakh worth gold medal and ₹75,000 cash.

The Fellow of KSTA honour to recognise the contributions of academicians, researchers, engineers, and technologists from academic institutions and industries across various fields of Science and Technology, was also given on the occasion. This distinction has been awarded since 2021 and for the year 2023, a total of 33 achievers were selected.

Minister for Science and Technology N.S. Boseraju, who presented the awards, said that the State government is committed to the comprehensive development of the Science and Technology sector in the State.

"By providing further necessary support to the KSTA in the coming days, we will shape it into a model institution for the entire country," he said.

The Minister added that cultivating a scientific temper and rational thinking among students and the youth is the urgent need of the hour. "Research and innovations should not be limited to laboratories; their benefits must reach the last person in society. Such programmes are inspiring in bridging the gap between science and society," the Minister said.

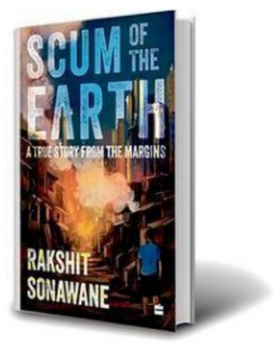
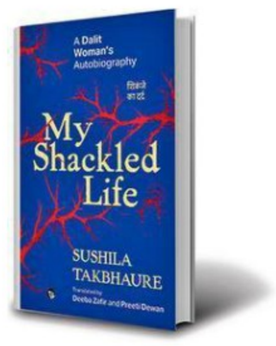
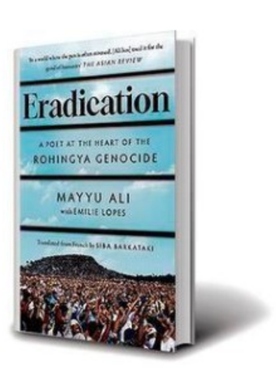
In remembrance: Noted author and social activist Mahasweta Devi. PTI







Festschrift for Mahasweta Devi: three books by marginalised voices

In her centenary year — Mahasweta Devi would have turned 100 today — we read three writers, Sushila Takbhaure, Rakshit Sonawane and Mayyu Ali, who chronicle their lives of oppression. Their stories would have struck a chord with a writer who always kept an eye out for the dispossessed

Sudipta Datta

Mahasweta Devi always looked out for the poorest of the poor. The writer and activist, who would have turned 100 on January 14, 2026, spent her life seeking a life of equality and justice for the dispossessed, particularly Adivasis, and the impoverished people of urban and rural India.

She wrote several books, Aranyer Adhikar (Rights of the Forest), Hajar Churashir Ma (Mother of [prisoner number] 1084), Rudali, Titu Mir, Chotti Munda and his Arrow, anthologies of short stories which include tales like 'Draupadi/Dopdi', 'The Breast Giver' and more.

Drawn to people who were forced to lead a "subhuman existence", she wrote about people with no access to education, health care, and income. In 1997, when Mahasweta Devi was honoured with the Ramon Magsaysay Award, she said: "My India still lives behind a curtain of darkness. A curtain that separates mainstream society from the poor and the deprived."

Mahasweta Devi passed away in 2016, but her chronicles will always feel urgent and contemporary as long as there is oppression and injustice in the world. She also always encouraged people to tell their story – the manner in which she played a role in Manoranjan Byapari becoming a writer and narrate his life as a Dalit in Bengal is well-documented.

The three books we feature in this article, by Sushila Takbhaure, Rakshit Sonawane and Mayyu Ali, would have struck a chord with a writer who always kept an eye out for the marginalised.

A Dalit and a woman

Sushila Takbhaure foregrounds the Dalit experience and women's concerns in her work. Her autobiography, My Shackled Life, translated by Deeba Zafir and Preeti Dewan from the Hindi 'Shikanje ka Dard', is first off all, as rightly noted by the translators, an act of courage. And this is the first autobiography in Hindi by a Dalit woman writer to be translated and published in English, thus reaching a wider audience. Kannada, Telugu, Marathi translations are in the works.

In the preface to the Hindi edition, she explains why she chose to call her autobiography, 'Shikanje ka Dard'. "Merely speaking of the 'shikanja – the vice of caste and patriarchy – would have been inadequate; what pressed upon me to tell was the pain [dard] that 'shikanja' inflicted."

In general, she writes that women encounter far greater challenges than men. Her book expresses the pain of being both Dalit and a woman. Sushila was born in 1954 in Banapura, a village in Madhya Pradesh, where "discrimination based on caste was widespread, and untouchability was deeply entrenched." What made her life different though is that her parents and grandmother valued education and ensured that all the children – there were several – studied as far as their resources allowed.

But life was harder for girls, and it seemed that they existed only to do housework. "What was worse, not only men but women too reinforced patriarchy by giving preference to sons." Sushila refused to give in and persevered with her education against all odds, even going on a hunger strike to ensure that her father and brothers agreed to her college admission.

Her life took another turn when she got married to a much older man, Sunderlal Takbhaure, from Nagpur who was a high school teacher. She writes in detail about everyday humiliations, but also her immense joy at being able to pursue her education and earning a PhD degree. Her purpose, she says, is to show how education can become a tool of liberation for women.

The die is caste

Rakshit Sonawane tells the story of Avinash Gaikwad who grew up in a one-room hut in the slums of Mumbai, and how he clawed his way out of poverty and caste discrimination. The story, Scum of the Earth: A True Story From the Margins (HarperCollins), mirrors his own.

Sonawane grew up in a slum, worked in a factory and at the port but continued his studies alongside. He got a postgraduate degree in literature, besides studying law and journalism, and finally became a reporter in 1985.

His protagonist, Avinash, never forgets the story about his father, Dagadoo, who was beaten for asking for leftover puranpoli, a Marathi delicacy. Dagadoo joined Ambedkar's social revolution to fight caste oppression and moved to Mumbai, with the belief that his son would have a better life with education. Avinash didn't disappoint his parents. Once he had a job, he began teaching students for free on Sunday, telling them to never discriminate on the basis of caste, gender, class or religion. He didn't want to adopt illegal means to earn a little extra just because he had "experienced poverty, illiteracy, humiliation and injustice."

Sonawane documents the urban Dalit experience, in which comments like "the caste system is a thing of the past" or that "the caste system was just a division of labour" were commonplace. To each, Avinash patiently explained that casteism was alive and kicking in forms both obvious and subtle.

Against a genocide

In the country he hails from, Myanmar, poet Mayyu Ali's existence is not recognised; in fact, the word 'Rohingya' is prohibited. Mayyu and his family fled to Bangladesh when the atrocities against the Rohingya began. But life wasn't any easier in the refugee camps. Yet, he never stopped writing poems, dedicated to his people. "I want to be their voice," he told Emilie Lopes. Together, they wrote Eradication: A Poet at the Heart of the Rohingya Genocide (Pan Macmillan India), translated from French by Siba Barkataki.

"The earth orbits with two different worlds;/The hell and heaven/I left one, to discover other," Mayyu writes in 'A New Heaven'. He had experienced the worst that man can do – "the scent of death, the sound of bullets, the taste of erasure, the sight of blood flowing over the bodies of my brother."

In 2021, as he opened the door to his new apartment in Toronto, he finally realised he was free. Though he has been forced to live in hiding, he has promised himself that he will never forget to be the voice of his people. The publication of Eradication is proof of that.

"What does collateral damage mean?"

"You have been listening to NATO's spin doctors, have you?"

"Spin doctor? Who is a spin doctor?"

"A spin doctor is a spokesperson for the government. He is employed by the government to..."

"...does it always have to be the government?"

"No, it doesn't. The person can be hired by an organisation, a politician, a political party...."

"I see. And this person's job is to ..."

"...provide information to the public in such a way that the person or the organisation that the spin doctor is representing is seen in good light."

"And in order to create this favourable impression, does a spin doctor have to lie at times?"

"He has to be economical with truth."

"Economical with truth? Doesn't it mean the same thing as lying?"

"It does. But 'Jaya is economical with truth' sounds better than 'Jaya is a liar', doesn't it?"

"It certainly does. Now tell me, how do I use the term spin doctor in a sentence?"

"Rubin has been hired by Clinton to be one of his spin doctors."

"I think Promod will make an excellent spin doctor. Can I say that?"

"You certainly can."

"What do spin doctors do when things become difficult? Lie? Or do they...."

"...they give you a lot of baloney."

"A lot of what?"

"B..a..l..o..n..e..y. Sometimes, the word is spelt b..o..l..o..n..e..y. The 'a/o' in the first syllable is like the 'a' in 'China' and 'about'. The 'o' in the second syllable is pronounced like the 'o' in 'so', 'go' and 'no'. The final 'ey' rhymes with the 'ey' in words like 'honey' and 'money'."

"And the stress is on the second syllable 'lo', I suppose?"

"Exactly. Do you know what it means?"

"Isn't it some sort of meat?"

"Yes, that's right. Baloney is meat. People have baloney sandwiches. But when somebody says something and you respond by saying 'baloney', you mean that what the person has said is nonsense or rubbish. Let me give you an example. When asked how they would bring down the prices, the experts gave us a lot of baloney."

"When somebody says something which is hard to swallow, can I say, 'Don't give me all that baloney'."

"You certainly can. The plot of the movie that I saw was pure baloney."

"Never mind! Now, coming back to the original question. What does collateral damage mean?"

"That's NATO's way of saying when they bombed Belgrade, they accidentally killed innocent civilians."

"And the civilians killed are the collateral damage?"

"That's right! Collateral damage is an expression which is used by the military quite a bit. It's interesting isn't it? When Serb forces kill civilians in Kosovo, NATO calls it an atrocity. But when ...."

"...NATO planes bomb trains in Yugoslavia and kill civilians, it is not an atrocity, but 'collateral damage'."

Flower show will be a window into Tejaswi's writing and life beyond

Rishita Khanna
BENGALURU

Preparations under way for the Republic Day flower show at Lalbagh Botanical Garden in Bengaluru on Tuesday. SUDHAKARA JAIN

For most Kannada readers, K.P. Poornachandra Tejaswi is remembered first through the people and creatures that inhabit his writing. Kiwi, the dog who appears repeatedly in his life and work, Carvalho, the scientist navigating power and forest politics, Mandanna and Kariyappa, figures anchored in the Malnad landscape, and the birds, insects, and animals that Tejaswi wrote about with rare attentiveness.

These familiar presences will form the backbone of this Republic Day's Lalbagh Flower Show, themed 'Tejaswi Vismaya'.

For the flower exhibition, the Horticulture Department relied on the recollections of those who knew Tejaswi and saw him at work.

"His daughters, Sushmitha Tejaswi and Eshanye Tejaswi, were part of these conversations, alongside caricaturist B.G. Gujjarappa, who has long captured Tejaswi's spirit through line and humour, and Dr. Pradeep Kenjige, an environmental writer who co-authored several science books with Tejaswi and continues to be associated with the K.P. Poornachandra Tejaswi Pratishthana. Friends and acquaintances from the Malnad region, where Tejaswi's life and imagination were rooted, also shared memories, as did scientists from Gandhi Krishi Vignana Kendra and the College of Horticulture, Mudigere," M. Jagadeesh, Additional Director of Horticulture (Parks and Gardens), told The Hindu.

Beyond celebrating Tejaswi's stature as an acclaimed Kannada writer, the flower show will make a conscious attempt to examine the many lives he led alongside literature.

One of the most striking aspects is his role as a farmer and activist. In the early 1970s, small coffee growers in Karnataka were forced to sell their produce through the Coffee Board, which had become increasingly rigid and pro-government. Farmers faced falling prices, delayed payments, and mandatory pooling. Tejaswi refused to submit to this system. "I will sell my crop in the market," he wrote, and did so, inspiring other growers to challenge the monopoly. His writings and public advocacy helped open Karnataka's coffee market, a milestone in the State's agricultural history.

Tejaswi's concern for farmers extended into the larger agrarian movements of the 1980s, when he collaborated with leaders such as M.D. Nanjundaswamy. He travelled across the State, attending meetings in Malnad towns, giving speeches, and writing critically about policy and rural distress. Even after the formal Raita Sangha waned post-1990, his columns and essays continued to highlight the vulnerabilities of small farmers, particularly in the context of environmental degradation and economic precarity.

At the same time, the exhibition aims to highlight Tejaswi's ecological awareness. Sections of the Glass House will display his lifelong resistance to deforestation and his meticulous observations of flora and fauna. Models of birds, insects, and animals, constructed entirely from flowers, will accompany the forested diorama, bringing the Malnad ecosystem to life.

Mantramangalya
Tejaswi's domestic and ethical life will find its place in the exhibition. A floral vertical garden pavilion will recreate his and Rajeshwari's Mantramangalya wedding, one of the earliest to follow Kuvempu's model of simple weddings.

Portraits, photographs, and replicas of the autographed invitations will be on display. The Glass House will also showcase his wooden farmhouse with 90,000 roses and chrysanthemums used to recreate it, alongside 3D figures of Tejaswi, Rajeshwari, and Kiwi, his dog which made its way into literature.

Technology and writing
A strong focus is placed on his experimentation with technology and knowledge dissemination. Tejaswi contributed to early Kannada computing and software projects, ensuring that the language could enter the digital era. Cartoon-style figures of Tejaswi surrounded by his books, writings, and characters will illustrate his curiosity across science, engineering, and environmental studies.

Statues of Kuvempu, Shivarama Karanth, Rammanohar Lohia, and Rajeshwari Tejaswi will occupy the periphery of the Glass House, highlighting mentors, contemporaries, and companions who shaped his thinking.

Skits and QR code
The Horticulture Department will also stage skits based on Tejaswi's novels, marking the third time such performances have accompanied the flower show, following earlier productions on Kuvempu and Basavanna. Visitors can also scan a QR code to explore his life and work in detail.

Govt. temporarily halts proposal to start medical colleges in PPP mode

Based on this model, the State had decided to start medical colleges in 11 districts, including Vijayapura, Tumakuru, Kolar, Davangere, Chitradurga, Bagalkot, DK, Udupi, and Bengaluru Rural

Following stiff opposition, the government has decided to temporarily halt the proposal to start medical colleges in Public Private Partnership (PPP) mode in the State.

Project reports had already been submitted to the government to build medical colleges in the PPP mode in Vijayapura, Tumakuru, and Kolar districts. However, there was opposition in Tumakuru and large-scale protests in Vijayapura demanding that the PPP-mode college project be scrapped and a government medical college be sanctioned for the district.

"The previous BJP government had announced that it would build PPP-mode medical colleges in the State, based on a NITI Aayog recommendation. However, there has been stiff opposition. So, it has been decided to temporarily halt these projects. If the elected representatives and the public agree, an appropriate decision will be taken at that time," said Medical Education Minister Dr. Sharan Prakash Patil.

According to the NITI Aayog report, it is practically impossible for the Union and State governments to bridge the gap in medical education with their limited resources and finances.

Therefore, the Aayog has proposed to start medical colleges in PPP mode and hand over district hospitals with 750 beds for their clinical practice. As per this project, the government will allot land to construct a medical college, even as private parties will invest for infrastructure, teaching and non-teaching staff, and run the college. The government will hand over the district hospitals to the private parties concerned for clinical practice. However, the district hospital staff will work under the Department of Health and Family Welfare.

Based on this model, the State had decided to start medical colleges in 11 districts, including Vijayapura, Tumakuru, Kolar, Davangere, Chitradurga, Bagalkot, Dakshina Kannada, Udupi, and Bengaluru Rural, among others. In the first phase, project reports were submitted for colleges in Vijayapura, Tumakuru, and Kolar districts, which have now been put on hold.

Nod for APF's hospital
Instead of these PPP-mode medical colleges, the State Cabinet recently approved a philanthropy super-speciality hospital by Azim Premji Foundation (APF) near Devanahalli at an estimated cost of ₹1,000 crore, with a focus on organ transplantation.

"APF will be given a completely free hand to run the hospital. The government's role will be minimal. Only the Medical Education Minister, Principal Secretary, and the Director of the Department will be board members of this hospital," Dr. Patil said.

Panel seeks public views on student union polls in State universities

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

A committee headed by Medical Education Minister Sharan Prakash Patil and constituted by the Karnataka Pradesh Congress Committee, to submit recommendations on re-introducing student elections on campuses, met on Tuesday. It has decided to invite stakeholders' opinion regarding holding student union elections in the State universities.

The committee unanimously agreed that it cannot decide unilaterally whether student elections should proceed, given the significant democratic, academic and social implications. Instead, it emphasised on the need for broader public consensus through consultations with key stakeholders. The public, students, parents, educators and other stakeholders are invited to share their views and suggestions throughout the committee's tenure.

Next meeting
The next meeting is scheduled for January 22, where received opinions will be reviewed and further actions deliberated.

Crackdown on illegal immigrants, 15 detained

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

A routine Mane Manege Police verification drive conducted by the Hebbagodi police has led to the detection of alleged non-scientific garbage disposal practices and the identification of at least 26 suspected illegal Bangladeshi immigrants residing in labour colonies in the Hulimangala area, since January 4.

Following the crackdown, landlords have begun demolishing illegal structures using JCBs after issuing an ultimatum to occupants to vacate the premises, police said. Over 60 families have lost shelter now.

Based on information gathered during the drive, the police detained over 15 alleged Bangladesh nationals who were allegedly living in the city for several years using fake identity documents, including Aadhaar cards, police said.

"Apart from environmental violations, illegal power tapping was also detected," a senior police officer said. According to officials, the migrants were found dumping garbage into nearby lakes and water bodies and allegedly drawing electricity through illegal power connections.

The Hebbagodi police have registered five FIRs in connection with the case and conducted door-to-door verification using mobile-based identification methods. Police have booked landlords who allegedly rented out land and allowed the construction of sheds and houses for migrant labourers engaged in garbage segregation.

However, several residents of the colony have denied the allegations. Many claimed they are Indian nationals from West Bengal and submitted documents that were reportedly verified by the jurisdictional West Bengal police.

"There are nearly 60 families living here and working in garbage segregation units. We have been here for the last five years with our families and now have nowhere to go," said Shafiqul Mulla, a migrant labourer.

Police, however, maintained that the identity documents produced by the labourers were fake. Citing one instance, an officer said a woman who claimed to be a native of Assam was unable to speak Assamese, did not know the national anthem, and could not name the Prime Minister of the country. Such methods to purportedly identify illegal immigrants has drawn criticism.

R. Kaleemullah, city-based social activist said the demolition drive should not be a tool to harass West Bengal migrants.

The Hebbagodi police registered an FIR against a migrant woman labourer after she was allegedly caught on camera raising 'Jai Bangla' slogans during an argument with residents in Podu village of Jigani, who had demanded that she chant 'Bharat Mata Ki Jai'. The woman later corrected herself and raised the latter slogan. The video went viral on social media following which the police registered a case.

German Chancellor in city: Merz visits Bosch campus, IISc

Visit underscores the deep economic ties between India and Germany in mobility and manufacturing, said Bosch

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Friedrich Merz, Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, visited the Bosch campus at Adugodi on Tuesday as part of his maiden India tour.

The Chancellor also visited the Centre for Nano Science and Engineering at the Indian Institute of Science. The media was not allowed at these events. Chancellor Merz's visit underscored the deep economic and technological ties between India and Germany in the areas of mobility, manufacturing and innovation, and also highlighted the role of German enterprises in India's growth story, said Bosch in Bengaluru.

Friedrich Merz, Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, at the Bosch campus in Bengaluru on Tuesday. SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

Guruprasad Mudlapur, president of the Bosch Group in India, and managing director, Bosch Limited, said, "We feel honoured to welcome the esteemed Federal Chancellor Friedrich Merz to the Bosch India campus. His presence not only affirms Bosch's enduring legacy, but also reinstates India's position in the world as a hub of technological innovation and economic growth."

Mr. Mudlapur also hosted the delegation at Bosch's India headquarters and highlighted innovations from the region. "This is a moment of immense pride for Bosch and a testament to the partnership between our nations," he added.

According to information shared by Bosch, the guests experienced Bosch's H2ICE (a Hydrogen Internal Combustion Engine) demonstrator truck with a fully integrated powertrain and telematics system. Bosch India, along with Bosch Germany, is driving the hydrogen transformation to accelerate zero-emission, sustainable mobility.

The delegation was also introduced to a range of Bosch's software solutions, including AIShield, an AI security solution that offered protection and reliability of AI systems.

Over the last century, Bosch has built a strong footprint in India driven by sustained investments, localisation, and a strong focus on talent development, contributing meaningfully to India's industrial and technological advancement.

BJP slams CM, Dy. CM for choosing to meet Rahul

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Leader of Opposition in Lok Sabha and Congress leader Rahul Gandhi being welcomed at the Mysuru airport by Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and Deputy Chief Minister D K Shivakumar.

The BJP has accused Chief Minister Siddaramaiah of showing disregard towards protecting the State's interests by being away in Mysuru, to receive Congress leader Rahul Gandhi who was on his way to Udhagamandalam, on a day when German Chancellor Friedrich Merz was in Bengaluru.

"This is not just bad optics, but also reflects a deep disregard towards protecting the State's interests," alleged Leader of the Opposition in the Assembly R. Ashok.

Taking to social media, he said the German Chancellor's visit was "a moment of immense diplomatic, economic and strategic significance" and "an opportunity for investment, industry, employment and long-term growth for Karnataka".

But while the German Chancellor landed in Bengaluru, the Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar chose to be in Mysuru to receive Rahul Gandhi, who was only transiting in Mysuru on the way to Udhagamandalam, he said.

"Welcoming the head of the state from one of the world's strongest economies was relegated to the back seat. Political loyalty and high command-pleasing attitude took priority over Karnataka's global standing," he said, terming it "misplaced priorities and missed opportunities."

Gig workers, unions welcome move to end 10-minute-delivery

Gig workers wait to collect their orders at a quick-commerce outlet in Bengaluru

Platform-based gig workers expressed joy at the news of delivery platforms reportedly planning to stop the 10-minute delivery model, after intervention by Union Labour Minister Mansukh Mandaviya. However, experts and unions underline the importance of a mechanism to ensure that it comes to effect on ground. "This is a very good move. This way, we can work more peacefully without unnecessary pressure," said a delivery partner from Bengaluru who works for Zomato.

"One of the biggest problems that we workers faced under this model was the likelihood of getting involved in road accidents in the hurry to deliver. Giving us more time will reduce instances of dangerous driving," he added.

'Victory of the strike'

Gig workers' unions welcomed the news and called it a victory of the national strike that was held on December 25 and December 31, 2025.

"It is because of the workers' collective efforts that those in power have started paying attention to our issues. We will continue our fight against the exploitation, for decent payouts and social security," said Mohammad Inayat Ali, president, Karnataka App Based Drivers' Union.

According to the union, around 40,000 workers took part in the strike in Bengaluru on New Year's Eve and about 2 lakhs across India. The workers also submitted memorandums to Mr. Mandaviya during the strike demanding the discontinuation of the 10 to 20-minute delivery model. Other demands of the workers included minimum fixed per-kilometre rates at ₹20 for Zomato, Swiggy, Blinkit, Zepto, Flipkart, and BigBasket workers, workplace safety for women, and elimination of arbitrary ID blocking and punitive rating systems, among others.

Enforcement issues

Experts, however, stressed the importance of a robust enforcement mechanism to ensure that the 10-minute delivery model does not continue.

"It is important to see how the Ministry of Labour defines this issue and the enforcement mechanism it is considering. It is also important to ask about how the government will gather data and evidence on whether the platforms are adhering to the directive," said Balaji Parthasarathy, professor at IIIT Bangalore and principal investigator of the Fairwork India project.

"If they are able to collect data, and there are violations by the platforms, what are the penalties they will face? What will be the recourse for the worker? These are aspects that need clarification," he added.

Consumer view

Megha N, a software professional based out of Bengaluru, noted that the quick-delivery model has been a big help to working women, however, added that the safety of the workers is also of paramount importance.

"Women cook on a daily basis in most of the households, so the quick delivery system helps them get ingredients in a short time. For working women, every minute counts in the morning and fast delivery helps them not be dependent on others in the house and stick to a proper plan. That said, we have to be empathetic towards gig workers. Maybe it might help both parties if the delivery time gets extended to 15-20 minutes," she said.

Another software professional noted that while it might inconvenience the consumers, not every demand of the consumer needs legitimisation, especially on the back of poor working conditions of delivery partners.

Still available

While the platforms have reportedly promised to remove the quick delivery promise from the branding, when The Hindu checked, apps of Blinkit, Swiggy Instamart, Zepto and BigBasket continued to show delivery times between eight and 15 minutes as on late Tuesday evening.

GBA Chief directs lake development works, road widening to improve traffic flow

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) Chief Commissioner M. Maheshwar Rao on Tuesday reviewed ongoing infrastructure projects across West Corporation limits and directed officials to speed up works on road widening, white-topping, and lake development.

During his inspection at Hosakerehalli, Mr. Rao said Kerekodi Road needs to be widened to improve traffic flow. He instructed officials to begin acquiring land from adjoining properties and provide transferable development rights (TDR), where required, to facilitate the expansion. He also reviewed buffer road work connecting Kerekodi Road to RR Nagar Arch and from Nayandahalli Circle to V. Legacy Road, directing officials to complete tendering quickly so that construction could start. A plan for developing cross roads in the area was also sought, along with a review of Javaregowda Doddi Road for widening.

At Vijayanagar's RPC Layout, Mr. Rao inspected white-topping work on a 1.4-km stretch from Railway Parallel Road (West of Chord Road) to 5th Main Road, of which 645 metres has been completed. He emphasised that rainwater harvesting systems be installed and roadside drains constructed properly.

The Chief Commissioner also reviewed development work at Nagarbhavi Lake, being undertaken at an estimated cost of ₹3.5 crore across 4.7 acres. Officials said encroachments have been cleared and most of the work is nearing completion. Mr. Rao later held discussions with Bengaluru Development Authority (BDA) officials and residents, and emphasised on joint inspections and measures to ensure the lake is properly maintained.

Man booked for killing stray puppy in J.P. Nagar

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The police have booked a valet driver of an eatery in J.P. Nagar for allegedly killing a stray puppy in an inhumane manner in the early hours of January 9.

The accused has been identified as Nepal Kiran, a resident of Puttenahalli. The incident occurred around 1.45 a.m. on January 9, near J.P. Nagar 7th phase, and was captured on a nearby CCTV camera. The footage reviewed by The Hindu shows the accused smashing the puppy against a compound wall. He then goes on to stamp the puppy's neck until it dies, according to the complainant.

Following the incident, Gopinath and Krishnamurthy, feeders and caretakers of stray dogs in the area, informed South Bengaluru Cares, a group working against animal cruelty, which filed a complaint with the police. They also submitted the video as evidence.

The Puttenahalli Police have booked Kiran under the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act and Section 325 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), 2023, which deals with mischief by killing or maiming animals. A police officer overseeing the investigation told The Hindu that notice is yet to be served on the accused and that he will be summoned for questioning soon.

However, Bengaluru Cares representatives reported the disappearance of a few more puppies from the street.

‘Respond to PIL regarding unnatural deaths in Dharmasthala’

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The High Court of Karnataka on Wednesday sought the State government’s response on a PIL petition, which has sought a direction to the Special Investigation Team (SIT) for registering separate First Information Reports (FIRs) based on claims by the petitioner on the unnatural death of 74 unknown persons in Dharmasthala village between 1990 and 2021.

A Division Bench comprising Chief Justice Vibhu Bakhru and Justice C.M. Poonacha passed the order on the petition by 48-year-old Kusumavathi, mother of Soujanya, who was raped and murdered near Dharmasthala in 2012 when she was 17.

It has been stated in the petition that Ms. Kusumavathi on October 11, 2025, submitted a representation to the SIT, which was constituted by the State government in July 2025 for probing the alleged complaints of mass burials, indicating that no proper procedure was followed in at least 74 instances of Unnatural Death Reports (UDRs) registered in Dharmasthala between 1990-2021.

In her representation to the SIT, the petitioner had claimed that bodies in these 74 instances were buried within 24 hours of the death indicating that no procedure as per the Code of Criminal Procedure (Cr.P.C) and the Karnataka (Investigation of Unnatural Deaths and Conduct Inquests), Rules, 2004, was followed, and hence require a fresh investigation.

Budget in first week of March and preparations are on: Siddaramaiah

Sadhana Samavesha, a programme aimed at presenting the achievements of the Congress government to the public, is likely to be held in Haveri on February 13, says Chief Minister

The Hindu Bureau
MYSURU

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Tuesday said that the State Budget will be presented in the first week of March and that preparations for it are under way.

Speaking to reporters at the Mysuru airport, the Chief Minister also said that Sadhana Samavesha, a programme aimed at presenting the achievements of the Congress government to the public, has been proposed to be organised in Haveri, before the Budget. The event is expected to be held on February 13.

Ready for polls

Mr. Siddaramaiah said the government is ready to conduct local body elections, including those to city corporations, taluk and zilla panchayats.

Responding to a question, the Chief Minister said the BJP-JD(S) alliance would not affect the Congress’s prospects in the elections. “The alliance will not have any bearing on the poll outcome. Alliances cannot consolidate votes,” he said.

When asked whether Union Minister for Heavy Industries and Steel H.D. Kumaraswamy was returning to State politics, Mr. Siddaramaiah said, “I do not think he has made any such assertion. We cannot assess his intentions based on his actions or statements. That is for the media to do. His health has improved, and that may be the reason for his visits to the State.”

Mr. Siddaramaiah also clarified that there is no confusion on the leadership issue within the party and said that reports suggesting otherwise are entirely a creation of the media.

He said the power-sharing issue was being repeatedly raised by the media even though it was not being discussed within the party. “The issue is a media speculation. Either me or Mr. Shivakumar would speak on this issue. Have we spoken about it?” he asked.

When his response was sought on Mr. Shivakumar’s reported indirect remarks on the issue, Mr. Siddaramaiah said that both he and Mr. Shivakumar would abide by the decision of the party high command.

Mr. Siddaramaiah said he is not visiting New Delhi.

Rahul Gandhi meets CM, DKS separately at airport

The Hindu Bureau
MYSURU

Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi, who returned to Mysuru on Tuesday evening to board a flight to New Delhi, reportedly held separate brief conversations with Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and Deputy Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar on the airport premises before his departure.

The separate interactions have assumed significance against the backdrop of continuing speculation over the leadership issue within the State Congress.

Earlier in the day, when Mr. Gandhi arrived at the Mysuru airport from New Delhi en route to Gudalur to attend a programme, he was received by Mr. Siddaramaiah and Mr. Shivakumar, who welcomed him.

Later, speaking to press-persons, the Chief Minister said there were no discussions with Mr. Gandhi and that he and his Cabinet colleagues had come only to receive him.

He also maintained that there would be no formal meeting with Mr. Gandhi in the evening when he returned from Gudalur. However, photographs circulated by Mr. Shivakumar’s media team showed the Deputy Chief Minister in conversation with Mr. Gandhi at the airport, with no other leaders present. It is learnt that when both the Chief Minister and the Deputy Chief Minister were present to see off Mr. Gandhi, he reportedly spoke to each of them separately for a brief while before proceeding to New Delhi.

The interactions have drawn attention as the issue of leadership and power-sharing continues to be discussed publicly, with some Congress MLAs openly airing their views, even as Mr. Siddaramaiah has repeatedly stated that the matter rests with the party high command.

‘BJP has allergy towards Mahatma Gandhi’

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Accusing the BJP-led Union government of “dismantling” the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MNREGA) and replacing it with a new framework that alters the rights-based employment guarantee, Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Tuesday said MGNREGA was repealed out of “allergy” to Mahatma Gandhi’s name.

“The Centre has scrapped MGNREGA and brought in a new law called VB-G RAM G. Gandhiji’s name itself causes them an allergy,” he said, calling for a sustained, people-led mass movement from the village to the State level until the new Act is withdrawn.

Addressing a Congress preparatory meeting for the “MGNREGA Bachao Sangram” campaign in Bengaluru, Mr. Siddaramaiah said the earlier law enabled rural workers to demand work and wages, and noted that 12.16 crore workers – including 6.21 crore women – had been employed under MGNREGA since its inception during the UPA era. He alleged that the new framework shifted financial burdens to States and diluted panchayat-level planning.

Pointing out that the issue was discussed at the recent All India Congress Committee (AICC) executive committee meeting, he said a sustained movement on the lines of farmers’ protest was needed to force changes in laws. The State Cabinet will discuss convening a two-day special session of the legislature to debate the impact of the new law and adopt a resolution, he said.

Deputy Chief Minister and KPCC president D.K. Shivakumar said the new funding ratio and centralised approval of works would reduce the role of panchayats and increase the burden on States. “If the Centre is going to decide everything about the works, what will the panchayats do? They killed Gandhiji then and now they are killing his legacy,” he said.

The Congress will conduct a phased agitation beginning on January 26 with padyatras of 5 to 10 km in all Assembly constituencies, culminating in memorandum submissions at taluk offices demanding restoration of MGNREGA. Mr. Shivakumar announced that he would personally join padyatras in four to five locations, including Shikaripur.

BJP to stage protests from Jan. 17

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Ahead of the possible elections to local bodies in the State, the BJP has chalked out various measures to galvanise its cadre including the plans to stage protests in four different cities against alleged failures of the government on various fronts.

Disclosing this at a press conference in Bengaluru on Tuesday, BJP State president B.Y. Vijayendra said the party would begin the protest series on January 17 from Ballari where an agitation would be staged against the alleged failure of law and order situation in the State.

Drug mafia had spread its network in the State, he said, and announced that the party would stage a protest in Mysuru against the alleged failure by the State government to crack a whip against drug network.

Similarly an agitation would be staged in Bagalkot against the “failure” by the government to respond to the problems of farmers while another protest would be staged in Hubballi against the “failure” to promptly release funds towards monthly instalments of Gruha Lakshmi scheme to beneficiaries.

‘Treasure’ found at Lakkundi said to be over 100 years old

The Hindu Bureau
HUBBALLI

Gold ornaments and other articles found by a family during excavation for a house construction at Lakkundi village in Gadag district, known for its ancient architectural monuments, are said to be well over 100 years old, according to an initial assessment.

Prajwal, the young boy from the Ritti family which is constructing the house, who first noticed a container with about half-a-kilogram of gold ornaments, has been praised for his honesty and the vice-president of B.H. Patil Education Society has announced that the institution would support the boy’s education till II PU.

The reported “treasure”, kept in a copper container (charige/ tambige), was found at a depth of five feet when workers were excavating for the foundation of the house. Soon after, the authorities had barricaded the site and had stopped the work.

Subsequently on visiting the site on Sunday, archaeologist Ramesh Mulimani had said that discovery was “unlikely to be a treasure” and that elders in the villages had the habit of hiding ornaments in the kitchen.

His statement, however, has now been termed “a slip of tongue” by Deputy Commissioner of Gadag district C.N. Sridhar, who on Monday, held a press conference along with Mr. Mulimani in Gadag. Mr. Sridhar said that as the family was now unwilling to build the house where the “treasure” was found, he would write to the government for an alternative arrangement.

As per an initial assessment, the gold ornaments were likely to be over 100 years old, Mr. Mulimani said.

On Tuesday, Minister H.K. Patil visited the site. He said that the family would be extended all necessary help in building the house and the family’s request for a job would be considered.

CPI(M) veteran joins Cong. ahead of elections in Kerala

Aisha Potty's defection has sparked speculations about a potential high-stakes electoral battle in Kottarakara, a constituency which she represented till 2021, in the Assembly elections

The Hindu Bureau
KOLLAM

P. Aisha Potty, a three-term former MLA and one of CPI(M)'s well-recognised woman leaders, officially joined the Congress on Tuesday, bringing the curtains on a three-decade-long association with the Left party.

The defection has sparked speculations about a potential high-stakes electoral battle in Kottarakara, which Ms. Potty represented till 2021, in the upcoming Assembly elections. Addressing the presspersons after her induction by senior Congress leaders, the 67-year-old leader offered a poised justification for her exit. Ms. Potty said she had distanced herself from CPI(M) activities since March 2023, citing a profound sense of neglect.

"If you feel you are no longer needed in a place, it is time to say goodbye," she stated, adding that she holds no malice towards party workers or the majority of the leadership, but there is no going back.

Ms. Potty earned the title of 'giant killer' in 2006 when she unseated the Kerala Congress leader R. Balakrishna Pillai, ending his dominance.

Police book 73, including news channels, for online abuse of actor Anasuya Bharadwaj

Lavpreet Kaur
HYDERABAD

Seventy-three accused, including individuals, social media handles and news channels, have been booked by the Cyber Crimes wing of the Cyberabad police on Monday for online abuse, sexual harassment, criminal intimidation and defamation of Telugu film actor Anasuya Bharadwaj.

In her complaint dated January 12, the actor stated that the sequence of events began on December 22, 2025, when Telugu actor Sivaji made derogatory remarks at a public event about women's clothing. On December 23, presspersons approached her for her reaction where she expressed her view in favour of individual freedom.

The situation escalated the next day after actor Sivaji named her at a press meet while discussing her views.

She alleged that several media outlets and content creators then amplified the issue by deliberately targeting her.

She said the online abuse later escalated into direct threats against her and her family. The complaint includes 73 specific URLs aired and numerous social media handles accused of posting profanities and sexually harassing content.

The Telangana Police have constituted a Special Investigation Team to probe cases relating to the circulation and telecast of defamatory, obscene and sexually coloured content against a serving woman IAS officer, following complaints of character assassination, violation of privacy and online harassment.

In observation made at 4.00 p.m., Bhiwadi, Rajasthan recorded an overall air quality index (AQI) score of 384 indicating an unhealthy level of pollution. In contrast, Shillong, Meghalaya recorded a healthy AQI score of 9

Air Quality Code: Poor | Moderate | Good (Readings indicate average AQI)

SO_2: Sulphur Dioxide. Short-term exposure can harm the respiratory system, making breathing difficult. It can affect visibility by reacting with other air particles to form haze and stain culturally important objects such as statues and monuments.

NO_2: Nitrogen Dioxide. Aggravates respiratory illness, causes haze to form by reacting with other air particles, causes acid rain, pollutes coastal waters.

CO: Carbon monoxide. High concentration in air reduces oxygen supply to critical organs like the heart and brain. At very high levels, it can cause dizziness, confusion, unconsciousness and even death.

PM2.5 & PM10: Particulate matter pollution can cause irritation of the eyes, nose and throat, coughing, chest tightness and shortness of breath, reduced lung function, irregular heartbeat, asthma attacks, heart attacks and premature death in people with heart or lung disease

More for later

Chancellor Merz's India visit signals a wider engagement with the EU

Amid tensions on several other foreign policy fronts, German Chancellor Friedrich Merz was the first of several high-level visitors to Delhi to strengthen India-Europe ties. Preparations are on for the EU-India Summit later this month, when the Presidents of the European Commission and Council will attend the Republic Day parade; plans for French President Emmanuel Macron's visit – he will attend the AI summit in February – are also being finalised. The meet between Chancellor Merz and Prime Minister Narendra Modi in Ahmedabad was about more than bilateral relations. It was about reaffirming elements of talks with the EU to conclude a long-awaited trade agreement, as Germany is its biggest economy, as well as exchanging notes on geopolitical turmoil, especially the U.S.'s actions. The leaders also attended a business council meeting, where they pitched more investments. With trade passing $50 billion in 2024-25, Germany remains India's largest trading partner in Europe. While the talks are understood to have been substantive, the outcomes were in essence a series of "Joint Declarations of Interest (JDI)" and MoUs. Among the JDIs signed, several deal with cooperation on strategic issues, including a Defence Industrial Cooperation Roadmap to promote collaborations and technology partnerships in defence equipment. This is seen as a precursor to the enabling agreements for defence purchases that India and Germany have been discussing but have yet to sign on to.

Where India and Germany have a less common view is on the Ukraine war, and the European contention that India must curtail its relationship with Russia. Chancellor Merz may have overstepped as he sought to portray India's German defence relationship as a means to reduce its "dependence" on Russian hardware. The statement was refuted by Foreign Secretary Vikram Misri later. While Germany and the EU are also hoping for a closer dialogue with India on the Indo-Pacific, Germany's bilateral trade with China, pegged at $287 billion in 2024-25, has not diversified and China is Germany's largest trading partner. It is therefore doubly significant that Chancellor Merz made India his first stop in Asia. The two sides also have differences over the upbringing of five-year-old Ariha Shah, who was taken away by German child services in 2021 over allegations that her Indian parents abused her. Despite India's appeals, Ms. Shah continues to live in German foster care, with only periodic consular and parental visits, and little sustained exposure to Indian culture or languages. The case of an individual may seem less important, but should be resolved without further delay.

Language of harmony

The rights of linguistic minorities must be protected in every State

The Malayalam Language Bill, 2025, which seeks to promote the language and passed by the Kerala Assembly, is being opposed by leaders in Karnataka. The concern that minority languages in the State, particularly Tamil and Kannada, would be adversely affected is misplaced and arises out of misunderstanding of the provisions. The Bill's objective is to provide for the "adoption of the Malayalam language as the official language of the State of Kerala and for Malayalam to be used for all official purposes, to provide for the use of the Malayalam language in all sectors in Kerala, subject to the provisions of the Constitution of India", and to advance the overall progress and enrichment of the language. The Bill proposes the adoption of Malayalam as the first language for schoolchildren and measures to promote the language in various sectors, from the judiciary to IT. The Bill states that Tamil and Kannada linguistic minorities in notified areas may correspond with the State Secretariat, Heads of Departments, and local State offices in their respective languages, and replies shall be issued in those languages; and that students whose mother tongue is not Malayalam may pursue education in other available languages in State schools, in accordance with the National Education Curriculum. Additionally, students from other States or foreign countries studying in Kerala whose mother tongue is not Malayalam are exempt from writing Malayalam examinations at the classes IX, X, and higher secondary levels.

An earlier version of the Bill, passed in 2015, was languishing for the Centre's clearance for 10 years. After the Centre returned the Bill following a Supreme Court of India decision that Bills cannot be indefinitely delayed, the State passed the current version. The Centre, ostensibly, has a policy of promoting all Indian languages, as do several States. As long as such measures are undertaken alongside those for the protection of the rights of linguistic minorities, no other State or the Centre should have any objection. Most States, including Kerala and Karnataka, have multiple linguistic communities. The linguistic division of States was only an approximation, and language borders have weakened due to migration. Language policies at the national and regional levels must account for these realities rather than pursuing a blind cultural agenda of Hindi or any single language promotion. To be clear, all these languages must have their rightful places in administration and the public sphere. To achieve that objective without allowing hostilities between communities is a challenge of nation-building. Mechanisms such as the Inter-State Council, which has been dormant, must be invested with more authority, and wider, good-faith conversations across linguistic groups promoted.

Decisive new factors in the Iranian conundrum

Mahesh Sachdev

is a retired Indian Ambassador specialising in West Asia and oil affairs

The recent civic unrest in Iran has been enveloped in a media fog and has polarised binary narratives, making an objective analysis difficult. Yet, given Iran's geopolitical importance and economic potential, such a granular exercise is required, particularly as it lies in India's extended proximity.

The genesis of the ongoing crisis lies in the increasingly dire eco-political conditions. It began on December 28, 2025, when a group of Tehran merchants ("Bazaari") staged a shutdown to protest the frequent devaluation of the market value of the rial, the national currency. While the rial's official exchange rate to a dollar was 42,000, the market rate was nearly 35 times lower at 1.45 million, having fallen 20,000 times since the Islamic Revolution in 1979. Its 45% decline in 2025 made importing essential commodities such as rice, sugar and edible oil and selling them in the rial at officially controlled prices, unprofitable.

Subsequently, other disaffected sections of the population, such as unemployed youth and low-paid employees, also joined the stir, making it a country-wide anti-government movement. Arson, vandalism and anti-establishment violence were reported. On January 13, authorities disclosed that over 2,000 people had died during the unrest, blaming the casualties on unnamed "terrorists".

Crises and the official playbook

Since the founding of the Islamic Republic in 1979, the authorities have perfected a four-stage playbook for dealing with recurring mass civic unrest, as seen in the election fraud in 2009, petrol price hike in 2019 and Hijab protests in 2022 – none of which succeeded. In the first phase, stern police action is taken to contain the law-and-order problem. If the agitation persists, a "good-cop, bad-cop' routine is played: while some high officials warn of enemy conspiracies, others exude sympathy for the "legitimate grievances", offering talks and concessions. Social media is locked down. The third stage involves weeks of attrition, seeding confusion, splitting the organisers and holding pro-government rallies. These three stages normally succeed in tapering off the protests. Thereafter, the leading protesters are rounded up and sentenced exemplarily with long prison terms or even execution. During all this time, the western media plays the role of an agent provocateur to the hilt.

The current melodrama now seems to be entering the third phase. Over the next four months, a token 10 million rials ($7), as a monthly handout, will be directly transferred to all citizens to mitigate inflation. The funerals of the security personnel killed and pro-establishment rallies were accompanied by a denunciation of foreign attempts to hijack the agitation.

The Pasdaran (Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps or IRGC) and the army have stayed loyal, condemning the agitation as a continuation of the 12-day Israel-United States war of June 2025 against Iran. The oil industry, the mainstay of the national economy, has stayed unaffected, and the governing elite has also not splintered. Moreover, no alternative leadership has emerged among the protesters.

> The genesis of Iran's ongoing crisis lies in growing and dire eco-political conditions, but it has also shown up new systemic vulnerabilities

The dynamics in Iran, foreign threats

Although the establishment seems to have managed to overcome the protest, the outbreak has exposed new systemic vulnerabilities. First, the Bazaari strike against the clergy-led regime was unprecedented. In Iran's modern history, the Bazaaris have been an influential bellwether lobby, at times forcing Iranian rulers to retract. Their withdrawal of support doomed the Shah in 1979. Their informal symbiosis with the clergy initially permitted profiteering from unfettered imports at a preferred exchange rate and selling domestically at market rates.

However, during the past two decades, this bromance has cooled. The economic conditions worsened mainly due to the U.S.'s "maximum pressure" sanctions. Further, they were also squeezed by the IRGC and the Bonyads (various ostensibly charitable foundations for war veterans, widows and orphans), muscling into lucrative sectors of trading, manufacturing and contracting. While Iran's President, Masoud Pezeshkian, recently claimed resolution of the merchants' grievances, the details have not been made public. It remains to be seen if the omnipotent IRGC, currently crucial to government survival, would agree to roll back their businesses.

Second, while Tehran may have tactics to curb protests, the ruling elite lacks eco-political levers to fix the root causes of the recurring social convulsions. The Iranian leadership's steadfast pursuit of a nuclear and missile programme and support to regional proxies diverts scarce economic resources and triggers western economic sanctions, causing social angst.

Over two-thirds of Iranians were born after the Revolution and have different aspirations than their gerontocratic politico-theocratic leadership. They see the affluence of their Gulf Arab neighbours and hold the leadership responsible for their abject penury. They also notice the kleptocracy and corruption in the top echelons of power. Moreover, with radicals in control of the clergy, parliament and judiciary, and a relatively powerless executive, significant social groups, such as women and non-Shia minorities feel alienated. While the managed election of a moderate President in 2024 raised hopes, these have been belied due to regional turmoil.

Third, the foreign abatement of the agitators has become mainstream, with U.S. President Donald Trump and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu openly encouraging them with military threats to punish the Iranian regime and possibly replace it. However, they lack any smart and easy options, and the outcome of any precipitous foreign action cannot be guaranteed. In 1980, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein attacked Iran to exploit the post-Islamic revolutionary chaos, only to see all Iranians unite against foreign aggression. Moreover, Iran's Shia majority has a long tradition of glorifying martyrdom and sacrifice, making them more inured to foreign military threats.

Despite its losses during the June 2025 military bout with Israel and the U.S., Iran retains sufficient retaliatory capability to thwart a repetition. Tehran's options include targeting U.S. interests in the geoeconomically sensitive and febrile region, making the Gulf Arab states wary about paying for a U.S. military misadventure.

Moreover, when driven to a corner, Iran could close the Strait of Hormuz, raising global oil prices. Mr. Trump has often criticised his predecessors for dragging the U.S. into "endless wars" and has so far avoided having "boots on the ground", preferring surgical airborne strikes and smart economic coercion. Although he has been emboldened by his tactical success against President Nicolás Maduro Moros of Venezuela, there is a clear realisation that the multiplicity of power centres in Iran makes military decapitation a risky and even counter-productive endeavour.

Instead, Mr. Trump is veering toward non-kinetic measures such as cyberattacks and the imposition of secondary punitive tariffs on the countries trading with Iran, encouraged by the outcome of a similar exercise in curbing Indian imports of Russian crude. Their efficacy remains uncertain as Iran has long been subject to Israeli cyberattacks and has a well-oiled sanctions-busting machinery in place, from marshalling cryptocurrencies to dark oil-tankers smuggling crude to China and dhows to Dubai (the world's largest trans-shipment port just 150 kilometres across the Persian Gulf).

Despite U.S. pressure, China and the United Arab Emirates are Iran's top two trading partners, with respective bilateral commerce estimated at $40 billion and $30 billion last year, totalling over half of the entire Iranian foreign trade. The proposed secondary sanctions by the U.S. may not curb such trade but only obfuscate it. Still, as a diversionary tactic, Tehran has offered to reopen talks with Washington.

Impact on India

The notion that turmoil in Tehran is inconsequential for India is misplaced. First, any conflagration in Iran would affect the security and stability in the Gulf, where India has substantive stakes in terms of diaspora, oil supplies, remittances and trade and investments.

Second, it would allow Pakistan to project itself as a dubious security arbiter to both Iran and the Gulf Arabs and earn brownie points with the White House. India also needs Iran to access Afghanistan and Central Asia. Third, after Iran, South Asia has the largest number of Shias, with their number in India estimated at around 25 million. They are natural stakeholders in what happens to their Iranian co-confessionals. Lastly, once four decades of western sanctions are lifted, the resuscitation of the Iranian economy would provide lucrative opportunities for India, particularly as Tehran has long pursued its version of Atmanirbharta.

India must focus on AI and its environmental impact

Amar Patnaik

is a lawyer and founding partner of A&N Legal Solutions LLP, a former CAG bureaucrat and a former Member of Parliament in the Rajya Sabha

The use of Artificial Intelligence (AI) takes up much discussion in sectors that range from health care to agriculture. But concerns about its impact on the environment have not attracted much discussion. According to an OECD working paper, "Measuring the Environmental Impacts of Artificial Intelligence Compute and Applications", the development of AI algorithms comes with certain environmental costs such as an increased carbon footprint which exacerbates climate change-related challenges. The report says that the global ICT industry (including hardware such as televisions) is estimated to be responsible for 1.8%-2.8% of global greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions; other calculations have a figure as high as 2.1%-3.9%.

It is worth noting that data about the carbon footprint of AI models and their use are not always authentic. A Google report (August 2025) claims that a single text AI prompt consumes electricity of only 0.24 watt-hours. What may seem to be low levels of electricity consumption has also drawn criticism for the report's incomplete and misleading conclusions.

Impact on the environment

In September 2024, an issue note by the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP), on the environmental impact of the full AI life cycle, said that house AI servers may utilise 4.2 billion cubic meters (bcm) to 6.6 bcm of water in 2027, leading to water scarcity. The note also refers to a study which indicates that training a single Large Language Model (LLM) can generate almost 3,00,000 kilograms of carbon emissions.

Similarly, a study, "Energy and Policy Considerations for Deep Learning in NLP" (June 2019), has assessed that the training of a single large AI model entails the emission of over 6,26,000 pounds of carbon dioxide. This is equivalent to emissions caused by five cars in their lifespan. A look at the energy consumption in the use of ChatGPT, a widely used AI virtual Assistant, helps understand how AI algorithms impact the environment and contribute towards climate change. According to a study, "Navigating New Horizons" (UNEP, July 15, 2024), any request made through ChatGPT leads to energy consumption that is 10 times more than what it would be through a Google search.

> There are several AI sustainable practices that India can adopt

Solutions, the world versus India

In 2021, UNESCO released its "Recommendation on the Ethics of Artificial Intelligence", which emphasised recognising the "negative impacts of AI on societies, environment". These non-binding recommendations were adopted by around 190 countries. The United States and the European Union (EU) appear to be the prominent jurisdictions that have proposed legislation dealing with the environmental impact of AI, as the Artificial Intelligence Environmental Impacts Act of 2024 and The European Union's resolution on harmonized AI rules.

Since there are global conversations about the carbon cost of AI use and deployment, India also needs to recognise the environmental costs of developing AI models. Current discussions now on AI and climate change are on how AI can help protect the environment, but without going into the demerits of developing large AI algorithms.

The first step to address this challenge is to carry out an exercise to measure the environmental impacts of developing and deploying AI models. In India, an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) is mandatory as in the EIA Notification, 2006. While an EIA is often conducted to evaluate projects concerning the environment such as river water projects, its scope can be extended to include assessing the impact of development of AI algorithms on the environment.

The government could also focus on the establishment of measuring standards in order to assess AI's impact. It can be done by involving stakeholders such as tech companies that are developing large-scale AI algorithms, think tanks, and non-governmental organisations that are working toward reducing carbon footprints and mitigating other environment-related challenges. This will help in building consensus on terminology, standards, and consistent indicators and reporting requirements, ultimately leading to informed policy decisions.

Another essential exercise is data collection which can be done by deploying sustainability metrics such as GHG emissions, energy, water and natural resources consumption that are utilised by AI algorithms. Environmental costs beyond energy, such as the impacts on freshwater and land use, could also be evaluated.

As a part of disclosure standards

The government can also explore the possibility of making the environmental impact of developing and deploying AI models as part of environmental, social and governance (ESG) disclosure standards by the Ministry of Corporate Affairs and Security and the Securities and Exchange Board of India. It can take inspiration from the EU, as its Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD) framework requires the disclosure of emissions data from data centres and high compute activities, which includes training of LLMs.

The focus should shift to including AI as a part of solutions toward global sustainability goals. There are several AI sustainable practices that can be adopted to mitigate the adverse impact of AI on the environment such as deploying pre-trained models, using renewable resources to power data centres, and reporting AI-specific estimates.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Iran and Trump

Iran lies at the heart of a foreign-policy paradox that reveals how topsy-turvy Donald Trump's 'MAGA' has become.

Washington's stance toward Tehran — marked by sanctions, open threats and episodic brinkmanship — reflects sustained pressure from the Netanyahu government to treat Iran as a permanent adversary rather than a state to be engaged. This stance has coincided with Iranian claims of foreign intelligence meddling, including allegations involving the CIA and Mossad, particularly as recent protests appear to have lost momentum. Whatever the veracity of these claims, they underscore how coercion has displaced diplomacy.

Iran appears to be determined to prove that it is no Venezuela.

President Trump has been strikingly candid in his disregard for international law — at times suggesting he does not need it, and similarly dismissive of the United Nations except when its veto serves immediate ends. In this sense, his presidency reads as an accumulation of America's harsher traditions, echoing the unilateralism of Andrew Jackson, the secrecy of Richard Nixon and the interventionism of the Bush years. And on top of it, one has Mr. Trump's obsession to win a Nobel Peace Prize.

Well, 'MAGA' thus promises renewal but delivers inversion: restraint recedes, power prevails, and irony completes the turn.

The importance of blue

T.M. Krishna

Carnatic musician and author.
This is an edited excerpt from his latest book, 'We the People of India: Decoding a Nation's Symbols,' Context/Westland. ₹899

In India, the colour blue has an age-old association with the struggles of the marginalised. In early 1859, peasants in Bengal, who had been exploited by white planters for decades, took a cue from a magistrate's notice that made the sowing of indigo non-obligatory, and for the first time refused to cultivate the plant. Though many historians have termed the protests that ensued as non-violent, some others say that besides non-cooperation, peasants attacked factories and defended themselves against armed goons sent by the planters. The Bengali bourgeoisie were careful not to antagonise the British government. This fence-sitting by the intellectuals may have been one of the reasons why this 'blue movement', which sustained for over a year, remained local and anti-planter, and did not develop into a larger anti-colonial campaign. Nearly 60 years after this episode, the indigo blue came back into focus. But this time, it was as the launch pad for an entirely new method of anti-colonial activism. One that played a pivotal role in freeing us from the colonial yoke in 1947.

The Champaran Satyagraha

Gandhi's first experiment with satyagraha, or civil disobedience, in India was in Champaran, Bihar, in 1917. Champaran was full of indigo plantations. The tenants of the plantation were bound by law to plant indigo on a portion of their land. 'This system was known as the tinkathia system, as three kathas out of twenty kathas (which make one acre) had to be planted with Indigo,' Gandhi noted. The tenants lived in oppressive conditions, and landlords used force and extortion to make sure they remained subjugated. Even when the price of indigo began falling, they had no choice but to grow the crop.

Gandhi first went to Champaran on the invitation of Rajkumar Shukla, an agriculturalist. He studied the problem, listened to the voices of the tenants, and mobilised public participation for a peaceful agitation. His overtures to the office-bearers of the planters' association were rudely rebuffed; he was an outsider.

Still, Gandhi's investigations were having an impact and made the government uneasy. He was issued a notice to leave Champaran, but he stayed on. Then the administration issued him a summons. The night before Gandhi was to appear in court, crowds gathered around the house where he was staying. The following day, the court was overflowing. In his characteristic style, Gandhi said, 'In my humble opinion it is a question of difference of opinion between the Local Administration and myself. I have entered the country with motives of rendering humanitarian and national service. I have done so in response to a pressing invitation to come and help the ryots, who urge they are not being fairly treated by the indigo planters ... As a law-abiding citizen my first instinct would be, as it was, to obey the order served upon me. But I could not do so without doing violence to my sense of duty to those for whom I have come. I feel that I could just now serve them only by remaining in their midst....'

Ambedkar's suit

But the dark blue of indigo soon faded from memory. It needed Ambedkar to bring it back into the public imagination. Ambedkar statues have him attired in a blue suit, holding the Constitution in one hand and urging us to move forward. There are many theories about how the association between blue and Dalit movements came about. Ambedkar's suit was a social statement and the choice of blue possibly just his preference. Some associate blue with the expanse of his vision and the non-discriminatory nature of the sky itself. Blue is also considered the colour of equality, representative of the working class. Buddhist and folklore associations with the colour blue have also been pointed out.

Could there have been another reason for the choice of blue? In his Riddles of Hinduism: An Exposition to Enlighten the Masses, Ambedkar reviewed what the Puranas had to say on the origin of the varna system. He quoted from John Muir's translations of some sections of the Mahabharata and the vulgate version of Harivamsha.

From the Mahabharata: 'The colour (varna) of the Brahmans was white; that of the Kshatriyas red; that of the Vaishyas yellow, and that of the Sudras black.'

From Harivamsha: 'The Brahmans, beautiful (or, dear to Soma), were formed from an imperishable (akshara), the Kshattriyas from a perishable (kshara), element, the Vaisyas from alteration, the Sudras from a modification of smoke ... Hence in the world men have become divided into castes, being of four descriptions, Brahmans, Kshattriyas, Vaisyas and Sudras ...'

That the colours blue and black are used as interchangeable shades was not important in these correlations. The scholar Nick Allen demonstrates that equivalences between certain colours and people's social functions, nature and even appearance are found in many cultures. These cultural associations also reveal that people at the lowest rung of society are invariably allocated dark colours, very often blue or black. Allen calls black a 'non-colour' which is connected with the semiotics of inferiority and otherness. This makes me wonder if his choice of blue was influenced by the association of this colour with shudras.

The blue chakra is at the literal heart of the Indian flag, holding within itself the strength of the Dalit community and the spirit of civil disobedience. It is a reflection of our right to assemble peaceably and without arms. An assertion that we will assemble to protect our rights and ally with all those society forgets to notice. It is also a reminder of our unkept promises.

The dark blue of indigo, which was related to the Champaran Satyagraha, soon faded from memory. It needed Ambedkar to bring it back into the public imagination

The UDF's ray of hope in an uphill battle

Local body poll results give it momentum, but Assembly polls could be challenging

STATE OF PLAY

Biju Govind
biju.govind@thehindu.co.in

The local body elections held in Kerala last December have breathed new life into the Congress-led United Democratic Front (UDF), which has struggled to reclaim power from the Communist Party of India (Marxist) [CPI(M)]-led Left Democratic Front (LDF) following the latter's unprecedented victories in consecutive State Assembly elections.

The UDF garnered 38.81% of the vote, compared with the LDF's 33.45% and the BJP-led National Democratic Alliance (NDA)'s 14.76%. Others (minor parties, independents backed by rival fronts, and rebels) got 13.03%.

The Congress alone secured 29.17%, ahead of the CPI (M)'s 27.16%. Buoyed by this two-percentage-point lead, the Kerala Pradesh Congress Committee convened a Lakshya Leadership Summit in Wayanad on January 4-5. The summit focused on unity, discipline, and a target of over 100 out of 140 seats in the 2026 Assembly elections.

Key strategies include early candidate selection with a 50% quota for women and youth, and a focus on winnability, overseen by the Central Screening Committee chaired by All India Congress Committee (AICC) general secretary Madhusudan Mistry. The Leader of the Opposition in the Assembly, V.D. Satheesan, unveiled 'Mission 2026', a campaign that includes a State-wide yatra beginning February and the division of Kerala into three strategic campaign regions. The party has emphasised strengthening its social media presence and focusing on governance solutions in the economy, and in health and agriculture, apart from expanding its alliances beyond traditional bases. In New Delhi, AICC president Mallikarjun Kharge and the Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha, Rahul Gandhi, will preside over a strategy session. This will be followed by a 'mahapanchayat' in Kochi on January 19, bringing together newly elected local body representatives and marking the campaign's unofficial launch.

While the prospects seem favourable for the Congress, which has been out of power for a decade in Kerala, Assembly elections demand a different playbook compared to local body polls. The Congress will struggle to sustain anti-incumbency momentum amid ongoing internal rivalries – multiple leaders are vying for the Chief Minister's post in the event of the UDF coming to power. Many believe that the Congress leadership has been unable to rebut the CPI(M)'s allegations about its proximity to Jamaat-e-Islami Hind. The Indian Union Muslim League, the Congress's largest and most organised ally, is demanding greater electoral space. This comes at a time when the Congress is trying to woo back the Kerala Congress(M), which defected to the LDF before the 2021 Assembly polls.

The Congress can only counter the LDF's bid for a third term with a carefully crafted pro-incumbency narrative, especially since the LDF has been showcasing large-scale development projects under the Kerala Infrastructure Investment Fund Board, celebrating the State's achievement in eradicating extreme poverty, and unveiling a range of welfare schemes.

The most unpredictable factor is the emergence of the NDA as a third force. The BJP's victory in the Thiruvananthapuram Corporation polls showed its meticulously designed electoral strategy. The BJP is now targeting specific Assembly segments in the Thiruvananthapuram and Alappuzha districts; and reaching out to the Christian community to win seats in Thrissur. The party is now focusing on seats it can win. More critically, it is keen to defeat the Congress and its allies rather than facilitate their return to power by splitting votes, as was the case in the past.

The Congress's path to power is therefore fraught with obstacles. The local body results, while encouraging, may prove a false dawn. What Kerala's electorate rewards in local body polls, which are often based on hyper-local issues, does not automatically translate to Assembly preferences. Governance track records, alliance arithmetic, and leadership credibility carry greater weight. The Congress leadership must be aware that the CPI(M)'s organisational machinery, as seen in the party's vote share, remains intact. The CPI(M) could bounce back from its electoral setback.

Unless the Congress can swiftly resolve its internal discord, present a unified leadership face, and put forth an alternative vision beyond merely riding the anti-incumbency sentiment, it risks squandering what may be its best opportunity in a decade to return to power in Kerala.

Big mandates, bigger responsibilities: trends in elections

Large electoral mandates raise high expectations, which many parties and alliances in India have struggled to meet over time

DATA POINT

Sanjay Kumar
Arindam Kabir

Whenever voters hand a party or an alliance a big mandate, they also have very high expectations from the government. India's electoral history shows that many parties or alliances have struggled to live up to that responsibility for long. Let us look at some of the examples where voters have given a party or an alliance a big mandate and what has followed.

In the 1984 Lok Sabha elections, held after Indira Gandhi's assassination, Rajiv Gandhi led the Congress to one of the biggest victories in Indian electoral history, crossing 400 seats in the 541-member House. This result reflected a mix of sympathy, hope around a young new leader, and a desire for stability (Table 1). Yet, the mandate faded quickly. Within five years, in the 1989 general election, the Congress suffered a significant dent in its seat tally. It has never again reached an outright majority like it did in 1984.

After the Emergency and the JP movement, voters placed faith in a new alternative, in the Janata Party in 1977. In north India, and particularly in Uttar Pradesh, the Janata alliance swept all the Lok Sabha seats, virtually wiping out the Congress in the State and signalling a huge shift in public mood.

But sharp internal conflicts and unstable governance meant that the experiment did not last. By 1980, the Janata government had collapsed and voters brought the Congress back (Table 2).

In Assam, the Asom Gana Parishad (AGP), a party which emerged from the Assam Movement, captured power in the 1985 Assembly elections by winning 65 out of 126 seats. This was an extraordinary achievement for a new regional party led mainly by young student leaders of the movement (Table 3). Over the decades, however, organisational weakness, splits, and competition steadily reduced its footprint. Today, the AGP survives largely as a junior ally in State politics.

The Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) won 63 out of 70 Assembly seats in Delhi in 2020. The mandate, built on an anti-corruption plank and promises of better schools, health care, and basic services, was one of the most decisive ones in any State in recent years.

However, in the 2025 Assembly polls, the AAP failed to retain its earlier dominance. Several senior leaders lost their seats. The result showed that even parties built just around politics of welfare and development can be punished when alternative narratives gain ground.

The CPI(M)-led Left Front governed West Bengal continuously for more than three decades and the CPI(M) still won 176 of 294 seats in the 2006 Assembly elections (Table 4). This period gave the Left deep organisational roots and a reputation for stability and a socialist model of governance. However, Mamata Banerjee's Trinamool Congress swept to power in 2011, cutting the Left down to around 40 seats. Similarly, in Tripura, the once-dominant front has not recovered since (Table 5).

The Sikkim Democratic Front (SDF)'s electoral journey tells a similar tale (Table 6). After consistently polling above 50% votes and sweeping successive Assembly elections from 1999 to 2009, the party's 22-seat victory in 2014 with around 55% vote share marked its last comfortable mandate. The emergence of the Sikkim Krantikari Morcha (SKM) as a credible challenger, along with growing anti-incumbency, eroded this hegemony.

In 2019, the SDF's vote share remained competitive but the party got just 15 seats. The SKM crossed the majority mark, ending the SDF's uninterrupted 25-year stint in power. The subsequent defection of 10 SDF MLAs to the BJP and two to the SKM further weakened the organisation. By the 2024 Assembly elections, the SKM had captured 31 of 32 seats with over 58% of the vote, while the SDF was reduced to a single seat, its worst performance since 1999.

The BJP in Gujarat has not only retained its vote bank but has also expanded it in the last few elections, especially after 2014 (Table 7). This can partly be attributed to the support the State party unit receives from the Central government and Central government institutions, but it is clear that the BJP has successfully deployed cultural nationalism, welfare, and popular politics to its advantage. Furthermore, its ability to gauge the popular sentiment of the majority and respond accordingly has played a crucial role in sustaining such a large voter base.

In Bihar, the Janata Dal (United) recorded one of its best performances in the 2010 Assembly elections. It had strong backing for its governance and development narrative and its leader, Nitish Kumar, enjoyed support.

However, in the 2015 Assembly elections, its individual tally fell significantly even though the new Mahagathbandhan as a whole defeated the BJP. The 2025 Assembly elections gave a big mandate to the National Democratic Alliance (NDA) government in Bihar (Table 8). This was in contrast to the 2020 Assembly elections when the NDA won the election with a very small majority.

The Trinamool Congress has been in power in West Bengal for the last 15 years with its vote share touching about 49% (Table 9). It will be interesting to watch how it performs in the 2026 Assembly elections. Will it be able to keep the momentum going?

Pugwash meet opens: call for abolition of nuclear weapons

Madras, Jan. 13: A short speech by the Pugwash President Nobel Laureate, Prof. Dorothy Hodgkin, in which she expressed the interest of the scientific community in the abolition of nuclear weapons, and indeed of all other weapons, and in the re-building of society on equitable lines, heralded the opening of the week-long deliberations of the 25th Pugwash Conference at the spacious Ball Room in Taj Coromandel here.

She said India had a very special place in the history of the Pugwash Movement in as much as the late Prime Minister Nehru organised a Committee of Scientists to explain nuclear energy which preceded the actual Russell-Einstein Manifesto from which the dating of the Movement was usually made.

Prof. Dorothy Hodgkin recalled how the late Dr. Radhakrishnan, when he was India's envoy in Moscow and also a Professor of Philosophy of Eastern Religions at Oxford, had urged her to visit the Soviet Union for contacts with her scientist counterparts in that country for a thaw in the cold war which was then at its peak. She actually made the visit three years later.

The literary institute, Namakkal

The Secretary writes: The Literary Institute, Namakkal was started in the year 1876. From small beginnings, the Association has grown in its usefulness. The rules of the Association are so framed that even a poor man may become a member of the same – the least subscription being Rs. 4 per month. About 5 years ago, the Association thought of expanding the library attached to it and thus making the Association more useful to the public. With this end in view, private efforts were made and are being made even now to make additions to the library which contained only 100 volumes in the beginning and the efforts so far made increased the number of volumes to about 500 in number. Want of funds stands in the way of further improvements.

SC questions EC on voter roll deletions

Mr. Dwivedi said a decision has to be taken "then and there".

"The consequence the other way would be that even though the ERO has found that he is not a citizen, he would continue in the electoral roll and vote. Once a shadow is cast on his citizenship, as long as it is not perverse or arbitrary, he needs to stand out. Nothing is perfect, but we have to chase the utopia of perfection as closely as possible," Mr. Dwivedi responded.

The senior counsel said persons excluded from the electoral roll under the SIR had the right to appeal.

"These things happen. The whole electoral exercise cannot be halted or modified for the sake of some persons. Of course, if the order [of exclusion] is perverse on individual facts, it would have to go. We are not entitled to wait until the final or ultimate decision [by the Centre], which may go one way or the other. He can file an appeal, and if the ERO order is set aside, he can be put back," Mr. Dwivedi submitted.

"Your argument is that non-citizens are not entitled?" Chief Justice Kant queried.

The EC counsel said citizenship and delimitations were the cornerstones of electoral process.

Mr. Dwivedi said various statutes, including the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act, mandated citizenship from applicants.

Delivery platforms to stop 10-minute service

The government source added that the move is aimed at ensuring greater safety, security, and improved working conditions for gig workers. Accordingly, Blinkit has informed the Ministry that the company's principal tagline has been revised from "10,000+ products delivered in 10 minutes" to "30,000+ products delivered at your doorstep."

General secretary of Indian Federation of App-Based Transport Workers Shaik Salauddin welcomed the intervention of the government and the subsequent decision of the platforms and said it was a significant and much-needed step in protecting the lives and dignity of gig and platform workers.

"The 10-minute delivery model forced delivery partners into dangerous road behaviour, extreme stress. We welcome and thank Mr. Mandaviya for listening to workers' voices and intervening decisively in the interest of their safety," he said .

Aam Aadmi Party MP Raghav Chadha, who had voiced the problems faced by gig workers in Parliament last month, posted on his X handle: "Satyamev Jayate. Together, we have won..."

"I am deeply grateful to the Central Government for its compassionate intervention in enforcing the removal of the "10-minute delivery" branding from quick-commerce platforms," he added.

SC differs on sanction to try public servants

The case will now be referred to the Chief Justice of India to be placed before a Bench of three judges.

"A fine balance has to be maintained between the need to protect a public servant against mala fide prosecution on the one hand and the object of upholding the probity in public life by prosecuting the public servant against whom prima facie material in support of allegation of corruption exists, on the other," Justice Viswanathan observed in his opinion.

He said the Lokpal had the authority to conduct an inquiry into even an allegation of corruption made against the Prime Minister of the country.

"If Section 17A is invalidated on the ground that prior approval should not exist at all, the immediate consequence would be that any complaint alleging corruption in official decision-making could straightaway result in a police inquiry or investigation," Justice Viswanthan reasoned.

Trust-building with China on, but LAC vigilance essential, says Army chief

General Dwivedi says interactions between the two countries have generated a sense of urgency and mutual acceptance to keep the border calm; reiterating India's long-standing position on Shaksgam Valley, he says New Delhi considers the 1963 agreement between Pakistan and China illegal

NEW DELHI

Chief of the Army Staff General Upendra Dwivedi at the annual press conference on Tuesday in New Delhi. SHIV KUMAR PUSHPAKAR

Emphasising the need for sustained alertness along the Line of Actual Control (LAC), Army chief General Upendra Dwivedi on Tuesday said that even as both India and China were working to enhance the "trust factor" between their militaries, constant vigilance remained essential to maintain border stability.

Referring to recent diplomatic and military engagements, he said a significant understanding was reached on October 21, 2024. "Before that, the two top leaders met in Kazan (Russia), followed by another meeting in Tianjin (China). In between, we have had Special Representative-level talks and Working Mechanism for Consultation and Coordination meetings," he said, adding that India's Defence Minister and External Affairs Minister had each held two meetings with their Chinese counterparts. According to the Army chief, these interactions generated a sense of urgency and mutual acceptance on both sides to keep the border calm and quiet.

The Army chief underlines the need for India to establish a dedicated rocket-missile force

"The first step is to keep communication channels open. We now have talks at various levels so that minor issues are resolved locally and do not escalate into major problems," he noted.

On the Shaksgam Valley, General Dwivedi reiterated India's long-standing position, stating that New Delhi considered the 1963 agreement between Pakistan and China illegal.

Illegal pact

"Any activity in the Shaksgam Valley is not approved by us. The Ministry of External Affairs has already issued a statement on this," he said, adding that India did not accept the joint statement issued in China on CPEC 2.0 and viewed it as an illegal action by the two countries.

Highlighting future capability development, the Army chief underlined the need for India to establish a dedicated rocket-missile force. "Today, rockets and missiles have become intertwined. If we want to achieve the desired impact, both can deliver it," he said. Pointing to similar forces created by Pakistan and China, General Dwivedi said such a capability was "the need of the hour" for India.

He noted that the Army had successfully tested the Pinaka rocket system with a range of 120 km and had signed additional contracts to extend its range to 150 km, with plans to reach 300 km-450 km.

"You must have also heard about systems like Pralay and BrahMos," he added, signalling a strong push towards enhancing India's long-range precision-strike capability.

'Operation Sindoor ongoing, blunders to be dealt with firmly'

Saurabh Trivedi
NEW DELHI

Operation Sindoor remains ongoing, and any misadventure by the adversary will be dealt with effectively, Army chief General Upendra Dwivedi said on Tuesday, issuing a firm warning to Pakistan.

The Army chief said that the anti-terrorism operation had sent a strong deterrent message by successfully destroying seven of the nine identified targets and puncturing the long-standing nuclear rhetoric of the adversary.

Security assessment

Providing an update on the security situation, the Army chief said that since May 10, the situation along the Western front and in Jammu and Kashmir had been sensitive but firmly under control.

In 2025, security forces eliminated 31 terrorists, nearly 65% of whom were of Pakistani origin. The figures include the three perpetrators of the Pahalgam terror attack, who were neutralised during Operation Mahadev.

Tri-service synergy

The General noted a sharp improvement in the internal security environment, stating that the number of active local terrorists had now come down to a single digit, while fresh recruitment had become almost non-existent, with only two cases reported in 2025

Describing Operation Sindoor as a model military response, he said it was "the best example of tri-service synergy under a clear-cut political directive and full freedom to act or respond."

Kuki-Zo groups agree to join Manipur govt. with conditions

Vijaita Singh
NEW DELHI

Kuki-Zo tribal groups said on Tuesday that they had resolved to join the popular government in Manipur, provided the Union and the State governments give a written commitment to support the negotiated political settlement for a Union Territory with legislature under the Constitution.

At a meeting attended by the United People's Front and Kuki National Organisation (KNO), the Kuki-Zo insurgent groups in Suspension of Operations (SoO) pact with the government, five MLAs and two representatives of the Kuki-Zo Council, a civil society group, in Guwahati on Tuesday, it was resolved that the "commitment must be executed in a time-bound manner, specifically within the current Assembly tenure", which ends in February 2027.

The resolution passed by the tribal bodies on Tuesday assumes significance as this is the first time the tribal bodies have agreed to join the State government since ethnic violence between the Kuki-Zo and the Meitei people erupted on May 3, 2023. Post-violence, the SoO groups and the MLAs demanded a separate administration for the Kuki-Zo people.

The participation of 10 Kuki-Zo MLAs in the Assembly is key if elected government is restored

Manipur was placed under President's Rule on February 13, 2025 and the 60-member Assembly which has 37 MLAs from the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) is under suspended animation.

The Hindu reported on January 7 that as the President's Rule in Manipur completes a year on February 13, hectic parleys are on by the Union government to restore the popular government in Manipur. In all, there are 10 Kuki-Zo MLAs in the Assembly, including seven from the BJP, and their participation is key if elected government is restored.

Trump's latest 25% tariff warning brings India-Iran ties under renewed strain

Kallol Bhattacherjee
NEW DELHI

India's ties with Iran have come under renewed pressure after U.S. President Donald Trump announced on Tuesday that "any country" having trade ties with Tehran would face a 25% tariff if it sought to do business with the U.S.

Government sources told The Hindu that India was preparing to bring down its trade with Iran in the current financial year, citing "external economic factors".

The developments have come even as India still last weekend, was getting ready to host Iran's president Masoud Pezeshkian for the upcoming BRICS summit, which India will host this year as it marks the 75th anniversary of establishment of India-Iran diplomatic ties.

The U.S. policy on increasing pressure on Iran has also put a question mark on the expected visit of Iranian Foreign Minister Syed Abbas Araghchi to New Delhi later this month. External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar announced India's vision for BRICS 2026 on Tuesday, saying that as BRICS Chair, India would highlight that the intergovernmental organisation is capable of absorbing "global shocks". India's policy on Iran will be keenly watched as the Islamic Republic is a member of BRICS of which India has been a founding member.

At both bilateral and multilateral levels, the India-Iran relation was expected to see multiple high points this year as India was getting ready to broaden its presence in Iran's Chabahar port, which is of crucial importance for both India's connectivity plans with Central Asia and Russia as well as for its newly unfolding partnership with the anti-Pakistan Taliban administration in Afghanistan. Iran joined BRICS as a full member on January 1, 2024, as the grouping expanded by including Iran, Egypt, Ethiopia, and the United Arab Emirates at the 2023 summit in South Africa.

Officials said that as a member of the BRICS, Iran's President may not face legal hurdles while travelling to India for the summit.

Iran Foreign Minister Syed Abbas Araghchi is expected to visit India this month.

Jaishankar holds talks with Rubio

External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar spoke on phone to U.S. Secretary of State Marco Rubio focusing on cooperation in trade, critical minerals, nuclear energy, and defence. He said he had a "good conversation" with Mr. Rubio and they agreed to remain in touch.

Treat inclusion of disabled persons as an advantage: SC

Krishnadas Rajagopal
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Tuesday urged corporates and investors to consider the inclusion of persons with disabilities not just as a mere "compliance issue" but also as a "strategic advantage" that would enhance their business performance, resilience, and social impact.

The judgment, co-authored by a Bench of Justices J.B. Pardiwala and K.V. Viswanathan, is the second in two months with which the Supreme Court is stepping in to highlight that business corporations not only do lead a profit-only existence but also have a constitutional duty to contribute to the society and environment.

On Tuesday, the Bench exercised the court's extraordinary constitutional powers under Article 142 to direct Coal India Limited to give Sujata Bora, who has multiple disabilities, a supernumerary post with a separate desk and specially-designed computer at its North Eastern Coalfields office in Assam.

Send more IPS officers to Centre, Union Home Secretary tells States despite SC order

Vijaita Singh
NEW DELHI

Union Home Secretary Govind Mohan has written to the States to send more Indian Police Service (IPS) officers on Central deputation.

The deputation is to fill middle to senior positions in the Central Armed Police Forces (CAPFs) and Central Police Organisations (CPOs), including the Central Bureau of Investigation and the National Investigation Agency.

The letter sent to the States in the first week of January comes though the Supreme Court on October 28, 2025, dismissed a review petition filed by the Centre against the court's May 23, 2025, ruling to "progressively reduce" the deputation of IPS officers in the senior administrative grade or up to the rank of Inspector-General in the CAPFs.

Govind Mohan

At present, 20% posts in the rank of Deputy Inspector-General (DIG) and 50% in the rank of Inspector-General (IG) in the CAPFs are reserved for IPS officers. The court's decision is meant to reduce the IPS dominance in the CAPFs.

Posts vacant

As on December 23, of the 188 posts at the DIG/IG level that are reserved for IPS officers in the CAPFs such as the BSF and the CRPF, 36 posts are vacant.

The letter by Mr. Mohan said 40% of senior duty posts in each cadre are earmarked as Central Deputation Reserve. "However, some of the States/cadres do not send sufficient number of nominations for deputation. Many a time, the States send more names of senior IPS officers, but do not propose the names for appointment to the posts of Superintendent of Police to Inspector-General. It would, therefore, be appropriate if a conscious attempt is made by the States to forward the nominations of officers for deputation in such a manner that officers of different levels/ranks are adequately and proportionately represented as well as every eligible officer gets an opportunity to serve at the Centre," the letter stated.

"Sometimes State governments withdraw the names of officers from offer, subsequent to their selection to a post or do not relieve them for taking up the assignment at the Centre. This results in considerable delay in their placement at the Centre and adversely impacts the entire process of selection, deputation and cadre management," it said.

Mizoram Governor Vijay Kumar Singh extended Governor's Rule in the Chakma Autonomous District Council (CADC) for six more months, citing continuing political uncertainty.

The Council of Ministers said that there was no justification in extending Governor's Rule, as the Zoram People's Movement (ZPM) enjoyed a clear majority.

BJP-EC seeking more voter deletions in State: Mamata

Bengal CM says CEC must answer how he can delete half of electorate, decide who forms govt.; voters whose names appeared on draft rolls summoned to explain 'logical discrepancies', she adds

Shiv Sahay Singh
KOLKATA

Continuing her tirade against the Election Commission for the ongoing special intensive revision (SIR) of electoral rolls, West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Tuesday said that if poet and freedom fighter Rabindranath Tagore had been alive, even his name would have been deleted from the voter list.

"The CEC must answer how he can delete half of the electorate, and decide who forms the government [in West Bengal]," she said, coming down heavily on Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) Gyanesh Kumar.

The Chief Minister reiterated that prominent citizens of the State – including Nobel Laureate Amartya Sen, Bengali poet Joy Goswami, and three-time Trinamool Congress MP Dipak Adhikari, aka Dev – have received a summons during the SIR. She had also made this point in one of her five letters to the CEC.

'Declared dead'

Beyond prominent names, the Trinamool Congress also presented 10 people, who were allegedly declared dead in the draft electoral rolls, during a rally in Cooch Behar. "All of them were born and brought up in Cooch Behar, but they were declared dead by the BJP's stooge Election Commission," alleged Trinamool general secretary Abhishek Banerjee.

Even some of those whose names appeared on the draft roll after the first phase are now being summoned to explain "logical discrepancies" in their enumeration forms. This was not part of the original SIR verification process, the Chief Minister said, claiming that it was "included as an afterthought to add to deletions".

The Trinamool Congress chief claimed that the"BJP-EC nexus" is planning to remove another one crore names from the final electoral rolls.

About 58 lakh voters' names were deleted during the first phase of the SIR in West Bengal.

Ms. Banerjee said that a BJP leader had been arrested at Taldangra in Bankura district with thousands of forms relating to the SIR. "The BJP has now escalated this assault on democracy by ferrying in people from other States, loading vehicles with thousands of Form 7, and coercively submitting them to engineer the mass deletion of genuine voters," the Trinamool Congress posted on social media.

Somnath temple a symbol of nation's enduring faith and traditions: Amit Shah

Abhinay Deshpande
AHMEDABAD

Union Home Minister Amit Shah said on Tuesday that the Somnath temple's centuries-long history of destruction and reconstruction reflected the resilience of India's civilisational ethos rooted in Sanatana Dharma. He described the temple as a symbol of the nation's enduring faith and traditions.

Speaking at a public programme in Mansa town of Gandhinagar district, Mr. Shah said invaders who had attempted to raze the temple had vanished with time, while the temple continued to stand on the same coastal site in Gir Somnath district as a symbol of enduring belief.

Referring to the inauguration of the "Somnath Swabhiman Parv" by Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Sunday, Mr. Shah said the year-long observance marked a millennium since Mahmud of Ghazni's attack on the temple in 1026. He noted that though the temple had been destroyed multiple times, it continued to be rebuilt and remained a prominent monument of faith.

Somnath corridor

The Home Minister said a grand Somnath corridor was being developed under the leadership of the Prime Minister, reinforcing the site's historical and cultural significance. Mr. Shah said the "Somnath Swabhiman Parv" would be observed across the country through programmes aimed at deepening public awareness of India's spiritual and cultural heritage.

He recalled the role played by leaders such as Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, K.M. Munshi, the Maharaja of Jamnagar, and former President Rajendra Prasad in rebuilding the temple after Independence, describing their efforts as an assertion of national self-respect.

During the event, Mr. Shah inaugurated and laid the foundation stone for development projects worth ₹267 crore, including a sports complex in Mansa, his native town.

Communist Party of China delegation calls on senior RSS leader in New Delhi

Ishita Mishra
NEW DELHI

A delegation of the Communist Party of China, led by Vice-Minister Sun Haiyan, met Rashtriya Swayamsewak Sangh general secretary Dattatreya Hosabale here on Tuesday.

The meeting went on for around an hour at Keshav Kunj, the RSS head office in the national capital.

This came a day after the delegation met the senior Bharatiya Janata Party leadership here and the two organisations discussed at length the means to advance inter-party communications. Sources in the RSS said that the meeting had been scheduled on a "request" by the CPC delegation.

Dattatreya Hosabale

"Sangh [leaders] meet everyone, and it believes in dialogue. They requested and we met," a senior RSS leader said, while adding that the meeting had no specific agenda as the two sides held an informal discussion over tea.

"They discussed RSS's organisational structure and our functioning," he said.

The meeting came up despite the RSS not inviting the Chinese envoy for the recent centenary year celebrations of the organisation. The envoy was also not invited for the lecture series by RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat, held in New Delhi and Bengaluru, which were attended by diplomats from several countries.

Earlier meetings

The meeting between the CPC leaders and the RSS, the BJP's ideological parent, happened for the first time in more than a decade. In 2009, under the leadership of then RSS spokesperson Ram Madhav, a delegation of BJP and RSS leaders visited Beijing.

Besides, a CPC delegation had paid a visit to Keshav Kunj, in the past.

Congress accuses BJP of 'double standard' over the meet, seeks transparency

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

Noting that a delegation from the Communist Party of China has called on BJP and Sangh leaders, the Congress on Tuesday questioned the ruling party's double standard with regard to China.

It sought disclosure of the agenda and outcomes of what it described as closed-door meetings.

Addressing a press conference, Congress leader Pawan Khera accused the BJP-led government of pursuing a "soft" policy towards China, alleging that this had weakened India's strategic position and compromised national interest.

Referring to the Galwan Valley clash, Mr. Khera said the Prime Minister's subsequent remarks had effectively given China a "clean chit", emboldening Beijing's assertive posture along the Line of Actual Control (LAC). He alleged that despite continued Chinese military build-up in eastern Ladakh, the Centre had failed to restore the pre-May 2020 status quo.

Pawan Khera

Mr. Khera also cited remarks by Deputy Chief of Army Staff Lt. Gen. Rahul R. Singh, who had acknowledged Chinese military support to Pakistan during Operation Sindoor, and asked whether the issue had been discussed during the BJP-CPC interactions.

"China has been trying to alter our map and you respond by banning an app," he said.

The Congress leader accused the government of failing to take Parliament into confidence on China-related issues, despite what he termed repeated territorial infringements.

He demanded full transparency from the government on its China policy, including public disclosure of the agenda, minutes and outcomes of all meetings between representatives of the CPC and BJP or RSS.

Held formal meeting with Chinese party team openly, says BJP

Party leader Tuhin Sinha also alludes to 'improved situation' between the two countries

The Bharatiya Janata Party on Tuesday responded to the Congress's criticism of its leaders meeting with a Communist Party of China delegation the previous day, stating that it was a "formal meeting" held "openly", and alluded to an "improved situation" between the countries.

BJP spokesperson Tuhin Sinha was responding to Congress leader Pawan Khera's remarks.

"It was a process of a formal meeting. A formal meeting takes place when a situation improves. We do it very openly," Mr. Sinha said. "We do not secretly sign any MoU which we cannot explain for years," he added, in an apparent reference to the Congress reportedly signing an MoU with the CPC in 2018.

"Recently, flights resumed. Trade talks are also going on," Mr. Sinha said, explaining the meeting by saying "things had improved" between India and China.

Mr. Sinha said Congress leader Rahul Gandhi had "lost his right" to question the Prime Minister Narendra Modi-led government's foreign policy since he had made a baseless claim that Indian soldiers had been "thrashed" by Chinese soldiers in the Galwan Valley clash. "Mr. Gandhi should not be compared with our people," he said.

Cong. to launch 'demand for work' campaign to mobilise MGNREGA workers soon

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Congress is set to launch the Kaam Maango Abhiyan (Demand for work) campaign at the end of this month to mobilise workers under the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA). As part of the initiative, party functionaries will help at least 10 workers in each gram panchayat who need employment to formally raise a demand for work.

The move is part of a larger programme titled "MGNREGA Bachao Sangram" (Save MGNREGA movement), which the Congress describes as a nationwide struggle to restore the "constitutional rights to work, wages, and accountability".

Congress leader Jairam Ramesh said the campaign aims to reach 2.5 lakh gram panchayats and crores of people. "The government has run a bulldozer over the MGNREGA scheme, which is the lifeline for crores of people in India," he said in a post on X, urging people to join the campaign.

Voicing dissent: Congress workers staging a protest in Noida as part of the party's nation-wide 'MGNREGA Bachao Sangram'. PTI

The party has also launched a website – www.mgnregabachao.in – where people can join the movement and sign a petition addressed to President Droupadi Murmu. The petition states: "We strongly protest against recent changes to MGNREGA that weaken its core promise of guaranteed employment and rural empowerment. MGNREGA is a constitutional Right to Work for crores of families and must not be diluted. Our demands: restore the guarantee of work; fix minimum wage at ₹400 per day; empower Panchayati Raj Institutions. We urge your immediate intervention to protect the spirit and intent of MGNREGA."

It has set up a coordination committee to monitor the programme, with Ajay Maken as convener and Mr. Ramesh, Sandeep Dikshit and Priyank Kharge as members.

The Supreme Court on Tuesday allowed a retired civil servant to withdraw his petition seeking the removal of the portrait of Hindutva ideologue V.D. Savarkar from public buildings, including Parliament.

A Chief Justice Surya Kant-led Bench criticised the petitioner for wasting the time of the court with such "frivolous petitions".

Himachal CM to raise apple import duty issue with Centre

Amid the rising concern among apple growers over the reduction in duties on apples imported from New Zealand to India, as part of a new free trade agreement (FTA) between the two countries, Himachal Pradesh Chief Minister Sukhvinder Singh Sukhu on Tuesday said he would firmly raise the issue before the Union government to protect the interests of the local growers. In Shimla, chairing a meeting with representatives of progressive orchardists of the State, the Chief Minister listened to their concern over the Centre's move of slashing import duty on New Zealand apples from 50% to 25%, which the growers assert would severely impact their livelihoods.

Army activates counter-drone measures at LoC in Rajouri

The Army on Tuesday activated counter-unmanned aircraft systems (UAS) or drones along the Line of Control (LoC) following multiple drone sightings in the Pir Panjal Valley's Rajouri district. Drones were sighted along the LoC, and the Indian Army activated counter-drone measures, official sources said. Drone sightings were reported in Rajouri's Chingus and Manjakote between 7 p.m. and 7.35 p.m. Security forces opened fire at the drones. "Later, the drones disappeared. The situation is under watch," officials said. Earlier this week, about five drone sightings were reported in the Jammu division.

SC says it will impose 'heavy compensation' for dog bites

The top court says that attacks often have 'lifelong' consequences, and questioned why those feeding stray dogs should not assume responsibility by keeping the animals within their homes

Aaratrika Bhaumik
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Tuesday indicated that it would impose "heavy compensation" on States and also fix accountability on individuals feeding stray dogs in cases involving dog-bite injuries or fatalities. The court underlined that such attacks often had "lifelong" consequences, and questioned why those feeding stray dogs should not assume responsibility by keeping the animals within their homes or premises.

A Bench comprising Justices Vikram Nath, Sandeep Mehta, and N.V. Anjaria also observed that municipal authorities could no longer shirk accountability, as their failure to comply with statutory obligations under the Animal Birth Control (ABC) Rules, 2023, had exacerbated the crisis.

"For every dog bite, for every death, we are likely to fix heavy compensation to be paid by States for not making the requisite arrangements and not doing anything. And we will also fix liability on dog feeders. You take them to your house, keep them. Why should they be allowed everywhere... frightening people, biting and chasing? Remember that the impact of a dog bite is lifelong," the Bench said.

Plan of action

However, the judges clarified that they were not seeking to dilute the ABC Rules but were instead calling for accountability for prolonged non-compliance with statutory mandates. They indicated that both the Centre and the States would be required to place on record whether any concrete plan of action existed to address the stray-dog menace.

"We need to call upon them to answer what they have done, why they have not done so, and what their plan of action is... The problem has multiplied manifold. We only want the implementation of these statutory provisions," Justice Nath said, addressing a large number of senior advocates appearing for animal rights groups.

The judges also expressed their dissatisfaction with the pace of the arguments, observing that the proceedings were taking on the character of a public debate.

"Nobody is allowing us to pass orders, and everyone is simply arguing. We are on the fourth day, and arguments are not concluding.... We are not saying the ABC Rules are bad or that the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act should go. We want the implementation of statutory provisions. But allow us to work and proceed further," the Bench said.

The oral observations were made during the top court's ongoing suo motu proceedings aimed at framing a national framework for stray dog management and addressing the persistent non-compliance of municipal authorities with the ABC Rules. The court said that it would continue hearing the matter on January 15.

Senior advocate Menaka Guruswamy, appearing for an animal shelter, submitted that the ABC Rules, which endorse the Catch-Neuter-Vaccinate-Release model, reflected Parliament's wisdom and were intended to be implemented in "letter and spirit".

Two with suspected Nipah infection in West Bengal critical

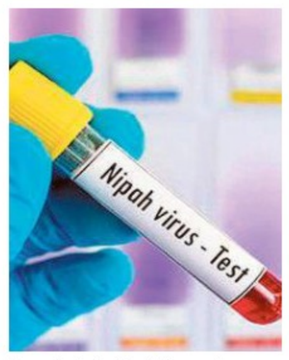
Shrabana Chatterjee
KOLKATA

The two patients who were suspected of being infected by Nipah virus in North 24 Parganas district of West Bengal remained in a critical state on Tuesday. They are undergoing treatment at a private healthcare facility in Barasat city, the same hospital where both patients worked.

Sources told The Hindu on Tuesday that one of the patients had tested positive for Nipah, and the report for the other patient was awaited. The two showed Nipah-like symptoms when their samples were tested at the All India Institute of Medical Sciences-Kalyani. The samples were then sent to the National Institute of Virology (NIV), Pune for reconfirmation.

One of the patients has reportedly gone into a coma, while the other person remained in ventilator support on Tuesday. Reportedly, both patients were on duty in the hospital for the past few days. They had fever during these days after which they were admitted.

Both private and public hospitals in West Bengal are preparing for any adverse rise in the number of cases. The IDBGH (Infectious Diseases and Beleghata General Hospital) in Kolkata has prepared a unit for Nipah virus patients, officials said on Tuesday. An expert committee has been formed, helpline numbers have been launched, and a standard operating procedure (SOP) has been developed for all hospitals.



Hospitals in West Bengal are preparing for any adverse rise in the number of cases.

"Do not panic but stay alert. We have already started contact tracing and an SOP has been developed and deployed," West Bengal Chief Secretary Nandini Chakraborty had said on Monday.

Contact tracing has begun across North 24 Parganas, Purba Bardhaman, and Nadia, because the two patients had returned from Bardhaman's Katwa town recently.

Equality in society has to start in school, says Supreme Court

Krishnadas Rajagopal
Aaratrika Bhaumik
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court, in a judgment on Tuesday, said that equality in society had to start in school, where the child of a multi-millionaire or a Supreme Court judge had to sit shoulder-to-shoulder with a child of an autorickshaw driver or a street vendor.

> The statutory design [of the RTE Act] is normatively ambitious. It envisages elementary education for all children, across the spectrum of class, caste, gender and economic position, in a shared institutional space. It makes it possible... for the child of a multi-millionaire or even of a judge of SC to sit in the same classroom... as the child of an autorickshaw driver or a vendor
> SUPREME COURT JUDGMENT

A Bench headed by Justice P.S. Narasimha elaborated that the obligation of the government under the Right to Education Act (RTE) to ensure that neighbourhood schools admit children belonging to weaker and disadvantaged sections has an "extraordinary capacity to transform the social structure of our society".

"The statutory design [of the RTE Act] is normatively ambitious. It envisages elementary education for all children, across the spectrum of class, caste, gender and economic position, in a shared institutional space. It makes it possible, normatively and structurally, for the child of a multimillionaire or even of a judge of the Supreme Court of India to sit in the same classroom and at the same bench as the child of an autorickshaw driver or a street vendor," Justice Narasimha, who authored the judgment, wrote.

The top court's judgment rose from the bitter experience of the petitioner, Dinesh Biwaji Ashtikar, who was quietly snubbed off when he had approached a neighbourhood school to admit his children for free and compulsory elementary education in 2016.

"It is his case that, even though information through RTI indicated that seats were available, the neighbourhood school did not respond," Justice Narasimha narrated.

The judge observed that educating "young India" and achieving "equality of status" demanded an earnest implementation of the constitutional right under Article 21A to free and compulsory education, followed by the statutory mandate of the 2009 Act.

'National mission'

"Ensuring admission of such students must be a national mission and an obligation of the appropriate government and the local authority. Equally, courts, be it constitutional or civil, must walk that extra mile to provide easy access and efficient relief to parents who complain of denial of the right," the Supreme Court declared.

Inter-departmental panel formed to combat 'digital arrests': govt. to SC

Krishnadas Rajagopal
NEW DELHI

The Union government has swung into action to combat digital arrests, which has deprived citizens, mostly elderly and the vulnerable, of thousands of crores of hard-earned money, by forming an inter-departmental committee chaired by its Special Secretary (Internal Security) Ministry of Home Affairs. The committee has held multiple meeting, and representatives of the online platforms Google, WhatsApp, Telegram and Microsoft attended the latest.

The government has informed the Supreme Court, which is hearing the case on January 13, in a status report that inputs to combat digital arrest scams have been received from the Department of Telecom (DoT) and the Reserve Bank of India (RBI).

The committee would guide enforcement agencies examine real-time issues and provide inputs. REPRESENTATIVE IMAGE

The high-level inter-departmental committee (IDC) was formed on December 26, and has officials from multiple agencies to "comprehensively examine all facets of the issue of digital arrests".

Chaired by the Special Secretary (Internal Security), the IDC has representations at the level of Joint Secretary and and above, officers from the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology(MeitY), DoT, Ministry of External Affairs, Department of Financial Services, Ministry of Law & Justice, Ministry of Consumer Affairs, RBI, Central Bureau of Investigation, National Investigation Agency, Delhi Police, and Indian Cyber Crime Coordination Centre (I4C), with its Chief Executive Officer acting as the member-secretary.

Attorney-General R. Venkataramani would attend the meetings of the IDC on a regular basis.

The IDC was formed after a Bench headed by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant had directed inter-departmental Ministerial consultations, under the guidance of the Attorney General, to clear the way to end the bane which has affected a large populace.

The Centre said the IDC would examine and guide enforcement agencies examine "real-time issues"; identify relevant legislations, rules, circulars and implementation gaps, suggest corrective measures and provide inputs for further directions, as may be required, by the Supreme Court.

Lohri: let darkness vanish

Lohri is a very significant religious and cultural festival celebrated across north India. Offering thanksgiving to the Sun God, Lohri heralds the end of the dark, dreary winters and the beginning of warm days. It also signifies cleansing oneself of inner darkness and seeing the light of divinity. Anthropologically, it is related to the agricultural calendar. It heralds the harvesting of Rabi crops. It is linked to the solar calendar, said Prof. Kumool Abbi. It marks the movement of the Sun from Makar (Capricorn) to the north, signifying the last day of the month of Paush. A bonfire is lit and oblations are offered to the sacred fire. Sesame, peanuts, popcorn, puffed rice and jaggery are offered.

The fire is considered to be alive and pure. A solemnisation of marriage or the birth of a male child is celebrated. The festival of Lohri signifies abundance, bounty, prosperity, fertility, symbolising joy, brightness, warmth, continuity, copiousness; above all, it is a celebration of community spirit.

Lohri is a precursor to the festivals of Maghi, Pongal and Bihu throughout India. The Sikh religion commemorates the sacrifice of 40 muktas and the Maghi Mela at Muktsar. Lastly, the festival of Lohri invokes many legends, the most popular being the one linked to Punjab's Robin Hood, Dulla Bhatti; an outlaw during the reign of Akbar, he is credited with saving the honour of two Hindu Brahmin girls and got them married on Lohri. The sight of children going around homes, chanting Sundri Mundri ho, tera kaun vichara ho, Dulla Bhatti wala ho, asking for Lohri, is an integral part of the Punjabi folklore.

Trump's latest tariff threat on Iran to have little impact on India

India's trade with Iran declined significantly after 2019 following U.S. sanctions against that country, while overall trade levels have been small

India's overall trade scenario is not likely to face much of an impact if it were to stop trading with Iran in response to U.S. President Donald Trump's new threat of a 25% tariff on any country doing business with Iran, official data showed.

However, it could temporarily impact some sectors such as rice, tea, fresh fruits, and essential oils, as per the data.

"Effective immediately, any Country doing business with the Islamic Republic of Iran will pay a Tariff of 25% on any and all business being done with the United States of America," Mr. Trump posted on Truth Social early morning on January 13.

Mr. Trump's actions are in reaction to the Iranian government's apparent crackdown on protestors in that country.

India has a history of stopping or reducing trade with Iran in response to U.S. actions. India's trade with Iran declined significantly after 2019, following the sanctions imposed on that country by the U.S. However, even prior to this, the overall trade levels had remained relatively small, with the two countries largely engaging with each other in a few sectors.

According to trade experts, if India were to stop trading with Iran, while some sectors might feel short-term pain, Iran's share is small enough that India will soon be able to find alternatives. Others say that most of what India exports to Iran can be classified as humanitarian products, and so it remains to be seen whether they will be counted as "doing business" with that country.

"As we all know that the trade with Iran is outside the sanctions imposed by U.S., given the humanitarian nature of most of these products," the Federation of Indian Export Organisations (FIEO) said in a statement. "And therefore, FIEO is of the view that the impact of additional 25% tariff imposed by U.S. on any country doing business with Iran will almost have no impact on India."

An analysis by The Hindu of the latest trade data with the Ministry of Commerce and Industry shows that Iran accounted for 0.26% ($764.5 million) of India's total exports in FY26 up to November 2025. This share has been falling consistently since FY20, when Iran's share in India's exports was 1.1%.

Of India's exports to Iran, a whopping 61% ($756 million) in 2025-26 so far was basmati rice. If India were to stop exporting to Iran in response to the U.S. tariff threats, this is a sector that could face some pain as basmati rice exports to Iran made up 13.1% of India's total basmati rice exports this year.

The other sectors that might feel an impact are tea, with Iran making up 5.6% of India's tea exports, essential oils (5.4%), and fresh fruits (5.3%).

Iran's share in India's total imports stood at 2.7% in FY17, and was 0.04% as of November 2025.

Rice exporters seek Commerce Ministry's help to clear payments

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

Rice exporters sought the Union Commerce Ministry's help on Tuesday to clear pending dues from importers in Iran amid growing civil unrest in that country, one of the major importers of basmati and other varieties of Indian rice. While Iran continues to be one of India's most significant destinations for basmati rice, the current financial year has seen growing stress on order flows, payment cycles, and shipment schedules due to the prevailing instability in the country, the Indian Rice Exporters Federation (IREF) has said in an advisory issued to its members.

The IREF's office-bearers met senior Commerce Ministry officials and apprised them of the situation. The IREF said in a release that the immediate fallout of the situation in Iran is evident in Indian markets too, where basmati prices have softened sharply within days.

"Exporters must exercise heightened caution, particularly with respect to credit exposure and shipment timelines," the IREF's statement said. India exported 5.99 lakh tonnes of basmati rice worth $468.10 million to Iran during April-November of the 2025-26 financial year, according to the IREF. The prices of popular domestic basmati rice varieties, including 1121, 1509, and 1718, have fallen by about ₹5 in a week.

"Iran has historically been a pillar market for Indian basmati. However, the current internal turmoil has disrupted trade channels, slowed payments and dented buyer confidence," the IREF's national president Prem Garg said in the statement.

"Importers have conveyed their inability to honour existing commitments and remit payments to India, creating uncertainty for exporters," the IREF said.

PV sales climb 5% in CY25 on GST, rate cut

Lalatendu Mishra
MUMBAI

For December, PV local sales grew 29% YoY to 3,49,170 units.

The Passenger Vehicle PV) segment clocked highest-ever sales in a calendar year (CY) at 44.90 lakh units in CY25, growing 5% year-on-year driven by Q3 offtake, as per data from Society of Indian Automobile Manufacturers (SIAM).

This segment also posted its highest-ever sales of 12.76 lakh units in Q3 of 2025-26, registering a growth of 20.6%.

"This robust performance was supported by improved affordability following the GST rate reduction, benefits from personal income tax relief and successive repo rate cuts by the RBI, easing financing costs and a renewed sense of optimism among buyers, which together helped in boosting consumer demand in this festive quarter," SIAM said.

"Growth during the year has been broad-based across segments with PV, commercial vehicles and three-wheelers recording the highest-ever sales," said Shailesh Chandra, president, SIAM.

Looking ahead, the industry expects the positive momentum to continue well into 2026.

British Columbia's Eby, Puri hold talks

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

Petroleum Minister Hardeep Singh Puri met Premier of the Canadian province of British Columbia David Eby to discuss the prospects for LNG projects in the region, cooperation in green hydrogen, LPG imports, critical minerals, and aspects related to energy sector.

"Held excellent discussion on fruitful India-Canada partnership as India moves ahead with momentum towards attaining energy self-sufficiency, green transition and Net Zero targets under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi," Mr. Puri posted on social media,

Mr. Eby is leading a trade mission to India and would be meeting government and business leaders in New Delhi, Mumbai, Chandigarh and Bengaluru. The objective is to "promote British Columbia's business, critical minerals and sustainable wood products, supporting work to build a more independent economy," read a government statement.

The outreach forms part of a larger diversification effort emanating from Ottawa as the North American country reels under "unjustified tariffs from the U.S."

Canada's Minister for International Trade Maninder Sidhu also met Mr. Puri to discuss bilateral hydrocarbon trade between the two nations in November last year. The bilateral hydrocarbon trade scaled to $226.45 million in FY2024-25 and held "substantial upside potential", Mr. Puri had mentioned then.

PFRDA sets up expert panel on assured NPS payouts

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

M.S. Sahoo

In a bid to explore methods to avert market risks and provide steady income, the Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority (PFRDA) said it constituted an expert committee to develop a framework for assured payouts under the National Pension Scheme (NPS).

The 15-member panel, chaired by M. S. Sahoo, former Chairperson, Insolvency and Bankruptcy Board of India (IBBI), would comprise members from the legal, actuarial, finance, insurance, capital markets and academic fraternities.

The panel would be required to deliberate on the operational design for execution in terms of defining lock-in periods, withdrawal limits, pricing mechanism and fee structure; provide for consumer protection by carving out standardised procedures to prevent mis-selling and address subscribers' expectations about the nature of assurance, among other things.

In a consultation paper last September, the PFRDA noted from the subscribers' perspective, as a 'mark-to-market' defined contribution scheme, NPS "leaves certain key questions unanswered, namely, adequacy of corpus and predictability of retirement income due to factors like market volatility, contribution persistency and investment choices."

Human + AI will define the future of work by 2027: study

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Human + AI will define the future of work and nearly all HR leaders (97%) anticipate that by 2027, the nature of work will be shaped by humans working alongside AI rather than engaging with it only intermittently, showed a Nasscom-Indeed study.

As per the study, this trend signalled a shift from AI being a supplementary tool to becoming an integral part of everyday roles, workflows and decision-making processes.

Myanmar pro-military party claims most seats in junta-run election

Myanmar's dominant pro-military party, USDP, on Tuesday claimed a majority of elected lower house seats in the country's junta-run polls, which democracy watchdogs say will prolong the armed forces' grip. With Aung San Suu Kyi jailed and her party banned, critics say the election ensures the junta's dominance. AFP

Trump 'cancels' talks with Iran officials, asks protesters to 'take over institutions'

The U.S. President, who ordered the bombing of Iran in June, tells protesters that 'help is on the way'; 'any country doing business with the Islamic Republic will pay a tariff of 25% on all business being done with the U.S.', he adds; Norway-based group claims 734 people were killed in protests

Stanly Johny

U.S. President Donald Trump on Tuesday doubled down on his threat of intervention in protest-hit Iran, telling protesters that "help is on its way", a day after he claimed that Iranian officials had reached out to Washington for talks amid ongoing protests and a security crackdown in the Islamic Republic.

"Iranian patriots, keep protesting – take over your institutions. Save the names of the killers and abusers. They will pay a big price," Mr. Trump wrote in a social media post. "I have cancelled all meetings with Iranian officials until the senseless killing of protesters stops. Help is on the way," he added, without explaining what kind of "help" he is offering.

On Monday, Mr. Trump said in another social media post that he would impose 25% tariff on Iran's trading partners. "Effective immediately, any country doing business with the Islamic Republic of Iran will pay a Tariff of 25% on any and all business being done with the United States of America. This Order is final and conclusive," Mr. Trump said.

Iran's main trading partners are China, Turkiye, the UAE and Iraq. Turkiye and the UAE are close American allies.

Donald Trump, who joined Israel in bombing Iran in June 2025, had earlier threatened to attack Iran again if protesters were killed. AFP

Mr. Trump, who joined Israel in bombing Iran in June 2025 during the 12-day war, had earlier threatened to attack Iran again if protesters were killed. "If Iran shoots and violently kills peaceful protesters, which is their custom, the United States of America will come to their rescue. We are locked and loaded and ready to go," Mr. Trump said on January 2. Ali Larijani, Secretary of Iran's Supreme National Security Council, had responded to Mr. Trump, saying "U.S. interference in this internal matter would mean destabilizing the entire region".

What began as a protest by traders over falling currency and hyperinflation has spread into a nationwide protest in Iran. The authorities have imposed an Internet shutdown, and cracked down on what they call "rioters and terrorists" on Saturday. State media have reported that dozens of security personnel were killed by "rioters". According to Norway-based Iran Human Rights, at least 734 people were killed during the protests.

Iran's Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi, in an interview with Al Jazeera, said the government was in talks with the protesters and the Internet was shut down only after "we confronted terrorist operations". In response to Mr. Trump, he said: "We are prepared for any eventuality and we hope Washington will choose a wise option. It doesn't matter which option they choose, we are ready for it."

At least 100 children killed in Gaza since ceasefire, says UN

At least 100 children have been killed by Israeli air strikes and ground forces in Gaza since the start of a tenuous ceasefire three months ago, the United Nations said on Tuesday.

The UN children's agency UNICEF said that at least 60 boys and 40 girls had been killed in the Israeli-occupied Palestinian territory since early October.

"More than 100 children have been killed in Gaza since the ceasefire," UNICEF spokesperson James Elder told presspersons in Geneva.

"That's roughly a girl or a boy killed here every day during a ceasefire," he said, speaking from Gaza City. "These children are killed from air strikes, drone strikes. They're killed from tank shelling. They're killed from live ammunition. They're killed from quad copters."

"We are at 100 – no doubt," he said, adding that the true number was likely higher. "A ceasefire that slows the bombs is progress but one that still buries children is not enough," he added.

Reached 'general consensus' with U.S. on trade deal: Taiwan

Lai Ching-te

Taiwan has reached a "general consensus" with the United States on a trade deal, the democratic island's negotiators said on Tuesday, after months of talks.

Taiwan and the United States began negotiations in April to hash out a trade deal after U.S. President Donald Trump slapped a 32% tariff on Taiwanese exports, which was later lowered to 20%, as part of his sweep of measures against dozens of trade partners.

Taiwanese President Lai Ching-te has pledged to boost investment in the United States and increase defence spending as his government tries to further reduce the levy on its shipments, as well as avoid a toll on its semiconductor chip exports. Taiwan's trade surplus with the U.S. was the seventh highest of any country in 2024, reaching $73.9 billion.

Russia launches yet another strike on Ukraine's power grid

Associated Press
KYIV

Russia launched a second major drone and missile bombardment of Ukraine in four days, officials said on Tuesday, aiming again at the power grid amid freezing temperatures in an apparent snub to U.S.-led peace efforts as Moscow's invasion of its neighbour approaches the four-year mark.

Russia fired almost 300 drones, 18 ballistic missiles and seven cruise missiles at eight regions overnight, Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy said.

One strike in the northeastern Kharkiv region killed four persons at a mail depot, and several hundred thousand households were without power in the Kyiv region, Mr. Zelenskyy said.

Kyiv has grappled with severe power shortages for days, although Mayor Vitali Klitschko said Monday night's strikes caused the biggest electrical outage the city has faced so far.

On Monday, the U.S. accused Russia of a "dangerous and inexplicable escalation" of the fighting at a time when the Trump administration is trying to advance peace negotiations.

Meanwhile, Russian air defences shot down 11 Ukrainian drones overnight, Russia's Defence Ministry said on Tuesday.

Syrian Army tells Kurdish forces to withdraw from area east of Aleppo

Syria's Army told Kurdish forces on Tuesday to withdraw from an area they control east of Aleppo after dislodging fighters from two neighbourhoods in the city in deadly clashes last week.

The move raises fresh concerns of further fighting between the two sides, as Syria's Islamist government seeks to extend its authority across the country and progress stalls on integrating the Kurds' de facto autonomous administration and forces into the central government.

In Qamishli, the main Kurdish city in the country's northeast, thousands of people demonstrated against the Aleppo violence, some burning pictures of Syrian President Ahmed al-Sharaa, also known as Abu Mohammad al-Jolani.

Syrian state television published an army statement with a map declaring a large area east of Aleppo city a "closed military zone" and said "all armed groups in this area must withdraw to east of the Euphrates" River.

The area begins near Deir Hafer, around 50 km east of Aleppo and extends to the Euphrates further east, as well as towards the south.

On Monday, Syria accused the U.S.-backed, Kurdish-led Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF) of sending reinforcements to Deir Hafer and said it sent its own personnel there in response.

The SDF is the de facto army of the Kurds' semi-autonomous administration and controls swathes of the country's oil-rich north and northeast, much of which it captured during Syria's civil war and the fight against the Islamic State group.

The SDF denied any build-up of its personnel around Deir Hafer.

Harmanpreet second player to reach 1,000 runs in WPL

EMMANUAL YOGINI

Mumbai Indians skipper Harmanpreet Kaur became the second player after Nat Sciver-Brunt to reach the milestone of 1,000 runs in the WPL. The 36-year-old achieved the feat during her match-winning unbeaten 71 against Gujarat Giants. Sciver-Brunt leads the tally with 1,101 runs followed by Harmanpreet (1016).

Need to improve our PowerPlay bowling: Capitals captain Jemimah

PTI

Delhi Capitals captain Jemimah Rodrigues said the team's bowling in the PowerPlay needed improvement in the WPL. "I think definitely our PowerPlay bowling. We need to get our plans more sorted. But again, it's tough to bowl when Sophie Devine is in such great form," she said after Capitals' loss to Gujarat Giants.

Limited games make ODI series like this important, says Nicholls

VIJAY SONEJI

NZ's Henry Nicholls said having a limited amount of one-day cricket between global events makes such ODI series "more important than ever." He said with next ODI WC nearly two years away and "there not being as much one-day cricket between major events, I think that makes these series even more important".

Venus Williams lost 4-6, 3-6 to Tatjana Maria in the first round of the Hobart International on Tuesday, less than a week before her appearance at the Australian Open. Harmanpreet-Carey show wins it for MI

The two put on 84 off 43 balls for the unbroken fourth wicket in the team's highest successful chase and make it eight in a row against Giants

When Harmanpreet Kaur walked out to bat, Mumbai Indians was struggling at 37 for two, and the target of 193 seemed far away.

But the skipper led from the front with an unbeaten 43-ball 71 as Mumbai Indians overcame early jitters to pull off a seven-wicket win against Gujarat Giants in a Women's Premier League fixture on Tuesday.

As a near-packed D.Y. Patil Stadium chanted her name, a calm and composed Harmanpreet forged two key partnerships – 72 off 44 deliveries with Amanjot Kaur for the third wicket followed by an unbroken 84 off 43 balls with Nicola Carey – as the defending champion pulled off its highest chase in the tournament.

While Amanjot hit a flurry of fours before falling to Sophie Devine, Harmanpreet and Carey ensured that there were no further dents. The two guided the team to a second straight win and inflicted an eighth successive loss on Giants in head-to-head encounters.

As the Giants bowlers failed to defend a big total, it was indeed heartbreak for Bharti Fulmali. Her unbeaten 15-ball-36 run cameo had guided Giants to 192 for five. The MI bowlers operated well in the middle overs before Bharti (36 n.o., 15b, 3x4, 3x6) and Georgia Wareham (43 n.o., 33b, 4x4, 1x6) put on an unbroken 56-run partnership off 24 balls for the sixth wicket to turn things around for Giants. They also became the first team to register 180-plus scores in three consecutive matches in the competition.

The Gujarat outfit retired out a struggling Ayushi Soni – a first in the tournament – in the 16th over. That turned out to be a masterstroke as Bharti came in and breathed life into the innings.

Purple patch: Carey continued her fine show. EMMANUAL YOGINI

She survived a couple of reviews before dealing in fours and sixes. After scoring 15 of the 16-run over by Carey in the 19th, she smashed Amanjot all over the park in the final over.

Bharti plundered 18 out of the 23 runs conceded by Amanjot as she entertained the crowd with power-hitting. But, her efforts went in vain.

Focus on the XI as Men in Blue hope to seal series

NZ IN INDIA

Amol Karhadkar
RAJKOT

The Men's T20 World Cup will commence on February 7. And the next ODI assignment that will truly shift Indian men's cricket's focus towards the 2027 ODI World Cup is nearly five months away. With little at stake, the least India can do in the remaining two ODIs against New Zealand – starting with the second match here on a festive day – is offer game-time to as many reserves as possible.

It will therefore be interesting to see whether Nitish Kumar is the only forced change or whether the team management opts for a broader rotation policy across departments. The Indian think-tank was already considering giving Nitish a rare ODI outing; Washington Sundar's side strain has all but sealed his third ODI cap.

Ahead of the series opener, captain Shubman Gill had indicated that the pace-bowling group would be rotated. It will be interesting to see if Arshdeep Singh is handed an opportunity at the expense of Prasidh Krishna. Both Nitish and Arshdeep had extended spells during India's optional floodlit net session along with Ayush Badoni who has been called up as Washington's replacement.

Fingers crossed: Nitish, right, is almost certain to take the field while Jurel is likely to remain on the sidelines. VIJAY SONEJI

There is also the question of whether head coach Gautam Gambhir is inclined to extend rotation to the top three. With Rohit Sharma, Gill and Virat Kohli forming a settled top-order, Yashasvi Jaiswal has been left out. Gambhir himself faced a similar scenario as a player when he, Sachin Tendulkar and Virender Sehwag were rotated as openers during the 2012 tri-series in Australia.

Gill. VIJAY SONEJI

It remains to be seen if India experiments with top-order rotation – if not here, then in Indore – to hand Jaiswal an opportunity. While Jaiswal took it easy, Dhruv Jurel – the reserve 'keeper-batter – had a long vigil in the nets on Tuesday. That said, few batters would willingly sit out a match on what promises to be a belter at the Niranjan Shah Stadium.

While India weighs combinations and personnel, New Zealand will hope to once again punch above its weight. Despite fielding a largely inexperienced bowling unit, the Black Caps pushed India to the brink in Vadodara. Michael Bracewell's side will be keen to find answers to the Kohli question. The maestro is in imperious form, having registered five consecutive 50-plus scores – including two hundreds – in his last five ODI outings.

The teams (from): India: Shubman Gill (Capt.), Rohit Sharma, Virat Kohli, K.L. Rahul (wk), Shreyas Iyer (Vice-capt.), Ravindra Jadeja, Mohammed Siraj, Harshit Rana, Prasidh Krishna, Kuldeep Yadav, Dhruv Jurel (wk), Nitish Kumar, Arshdeep Singh, Yashasvi Jaiswal, Ayush Badoni.
New Zealand: Michael Bracewell (Capt.), Adithya Ashok, Kristian Clarke, Josh Clarkson, Devon Conway, Zak Foulkes, Mitch Hay (wk), Kyle Jamieson, Nick Kelly, Jayden Lennox, Daryl Mitchell, Henry Nicholls, Glenn Phillips, Michael Rae, Will Young.
Match starts at 1.30 p.m.

Jadeja needs to raise his game on home turf

Amol Karhadkar
RAJKOT

The Niranjan Shah Stadium at Rajkot has been Ravindra Jadeja's home ground for a quarter of a century.

But it's a different homecoming for Jadeja this time around. Having retired from the T20Is and recalled to the ODI set-up at the expense of Axar Patel, the 37-year-old will have to make a significant contribution to consolidate his position in the format.

In the four ODIs India has played since his return to the 50-over format in November, Jadeja made vital contributions with the bat against South Africa before having an odd failure against the Kiwis in Vadodara on Sunday. But it's his bowling that has let him down. He has picked up a solitary wicket at an average of 213 and an economy rate of 6.26.

For a bowler with immaculate control, Jadeja will know that he hasn't lived up to the potential so far this home season. No wonder then that the veteran all-rounder not only had a brief stint with the willow on Tuesday but also rolled his arm over.

India's batting coach Sitanshu Kotak, who was Jadeja's senior teammate for Saurashtra, backed the southpaw to come good during Wednesday's second ODI.

"Ravindra has already played here, so it's great for him to be in Rajkot," Kotak said.

"A lot of support for him obviously. I don't think I should be talking about anyone's future. I will still tell you that Ravindra is fit, he is performing and as long he is performing and enjoying the game, any player would want to play and do well for India and the team".

Rohit, Kohli discuss ODI plans with Gambhir: Kotak

RAJKOT

India's batting coach Sitanshu Kotak on Tuesday played down speculation about an alleged communication breakdown between senior batters Virat Kohli and Rohit Sharma and head coach Gautam Gambhir, stressing that the experienced duo remains deeply involved in discussions around team planning.

"The amount of experience they (Rohit and Kohli) have, they can share a lot of ideas with other players and they do discuss. They discuss with Gautam about the ODI format, about the matches we have, our plans going to South Africa (for the World Cup)," Kotak said while addressing the media here on Tuesday.

"Most of the time, I am there and if I am listening, they definitely share the experience and I always see them talking. Obviously, in social media, you see a lot of things which I try to avoid seeing."

Kotak was responding to a query on how the team management is handling Kohli and Rohit operating as single-format specialists at a time when ODIs are the least played format in international cricket.

He explained that given their stature and experience, the duo requires minimal external guidance, particularly when it comes to preparation and workload management.

"Both of them are so senior and so experienced. They definitely make plans. They want to practice at all the venues. If they feel they need to, they go a couple of days in advance. And they practice because they both also have been such outstanding players for India," Kotak said.

"Planning-wise and all, they are brilliant. They know what they need to do.

"They know what their body needs, not only batting, even fitness, whatever requirements they have, so they are thorough professionals. I don't think they need to be told they need to do this or that".

Jugraj's hat-trick does it for Tigers

Jugraj Singh scored his first hat-trick of the season to ensure a commanding 5-3 win for the Shrachi Bengal Tigers against Tamil Nadu Dragons in the Men's Hockey India League on Tuesday. The win took Tigers to the fourth spot.

While Jugraj became only the second player to get a hat-trick after HIL GC's Kane Russell, who has three to his credit so far, goals from Sukhjeet (33rd minute) and Abhishek (55th minute) helped the Tigers' cause. Adrohit Ekka, Thomas Sorsby and Blake Govers found the target for Dragons.

Bengal Tigers was quick to get off the blocks, but didn't find success.

However, an infringement by the defenders saw Dragons give away a penalty stroke in the 11th minute. Jugraj, the top-scorer in the previous edition, kept the ball low and came up with a fierce shot to beat goalkeeper David Harte to put his team ahead.

The result: Shrachi Bengal Tigers 5 (Jugraj 11, 43 & 45, Sukhjeet 33, Abhishek 55) bt Tamil Nadu Dragons 3 (Adrohit 36, Sorsby 48, Govers 51).

Vidarbha makes short work of Delhi, sets up semifinal clash with Karnataka

Rathod, Taide shine in the team's 76-run victory; Prabhsimran, Anmolpreet star in Punjab's power-packed performance against Madhya Pradesh

HAZARE TROPHY

Ashwin Achal
BENGALURU

An efficient Vidarbha outclassed Delhi by 76 runs in the Vijay Hazare Trophy quarterfinal at the BCCI CoE (2) ground here on Tuesday.

Vidarbha batting fired first, with Yash Rathod (86), Atharva Taide (62) and Dhruv Shorey (49) playing their part to take the side to 300 for nine.

The Delhi reply was stunted early when fast bowler Nachiket Bhute dismissed key batters Priyansh Arya (28) and Nitish Rana (0) off successive balls. Priyansh looked in good touch, until he feathered a delivery going down leg. Rana's ambitious upper cut landed in the safe hands of R. Samarth at third-man.

Off-spinner Harsh Dubey then went through the middle-order, leaving Delhi at 123 for five. Anuj Rawat (66, 98b, 7x4) hung around as Delhi's last hope. The southpaw was circumspect even as the asking rate rose to 10 an over. Rawat's plan to leave the big-hitting to the end failed, as he top-edged a slower ball from Praful Hinge to cover in the 43rd over.

Exhilarating stuff: Rathod and Prabhsimran were in their element coming up with aggressive half-centuries for Vidarbha and Punjab in their respective quarterfinals. K. MURALI KUMAR

In the other quarterfinal at the BCCI CoE (1), Punjab whipped Madhya Pradesh by 183 runs. After being put in to bat, Punjab played with positive intent from the go and piled up 345 for six. The top-three - Harnoor Singh (51, 71b, 7x4, 1x6), Prabhsimran Singh (88, 86b, 10x4, 2x6) and Anmolpreet Singh (70, 62b, 8x4, 2x6) - provided the perfect start.

Nehal Wadhera (56, 38b, 8x4, 1x6) and Ramandeep Singh (24 n.o., 15b, 1x4, 1x6) had the licence to go for the kill at the death.

Madhya Pradesh had perhaps expected the pitch to aid seamers, as it did at this venue on Monday. But with the sun out, unlike overcast conditions seen the previous day, it was the batters who called the shots.

Madhya Pradesh caved in meekly on a friendly pitch, falling to 83 for six inside 20 overs. Expectations were high when captain Venkatesh Iyer joined Rajat Patidar at the fall of the third wicket, but Venkatesh lasted all of two balls. Venkatesh played down the wrong line to seamer Sanvir Singh, and was adjudged leg-before.

When Patidar was sent back trying to up the scoring rate, the writing was on the wall for Madhya Pradesh.

Karnataka will face Vidarbha in the semifinal here on Thursday while Punjab battles Saurashtra on the same day.

The scores: Punjab 345/6 in 50 overs (Harnoor Singh 51, Prabhsimran Singh 88, Anmolpreet Singh 70, Nehal Wadhera 56) bt Madhya Pradesh 162 in 31.2 overs.
Vidarbha 300/9 in 50 overs (Atharva Taide 62, Dhruv Shorey 49, Yash Rathod 86) bt Delhi 224 in 45.1 overs (Anuj Rawat 66, Nachiket Bhute 4/51).

A day of upsets; Lakshya bests Ayush

On a day that saw a slew of retirements and upsets, Lakshya Sen stayed in the hunt for the year's first title with a comprehensive 21-12, 21-15 win against compatriot Ayush Shetty in the opening round of the Yonex-Sunrise India Open Super 750 event here on Tuesday.

It was one of the few things that went on expected lines on day one of the competition. Lakshya, the last Indian winner here in 2022 when it was still a Super 500 event, raced to an 11-3 lead against Ayush, playing in his maiden India Open. The youngster was barely able to move his feet and was unable to control the shuttle and his shots as Lakshya mixed his own, making his opponent struggle to reach the shuttle.

It was 17-6 before Ayush finally found some rhythm, reeling off six straight points to show some fight but Lakshya closed out the game. The 20-year-old showed more fight in the second game, taking a 5-2 lead and staying level till the interval but ran out of steam to bow out in 36 minutes.

But there were quite a few upsets elsewhere, with Canada's Brian Yang sending fourth seed Chou Tien Chen packing 21-19, 21-11, his compatriot Victor Lai defeating Toma Junior Popov 21-12, 16-21, 21-8, and Chi Yu Jen upsetting Frenchman Alex Lanier 21-17, 21-19. A new year and a new venue for the India Open have brought some old complaints, with Danish player Mia Blichfeldt reiterating that the conditions at the Indira Gandhi Indoor Stadium left a lot to be desired.

Blichfeldt, who had slammed the conditions last year as well in a social media post, appreciated the playing arena but insisted the hygiene and weather were a challenge. "I had hoped it would be better than the other hall, but it is still very dirty, really unhealthy conditions for all players. Yesterday when I came to the courts, birds were flying around and creating a mess."

"The arena is really good. I like to play in conditions like this. I am sure the association and the volunteers are doing their best and hoping it's going to be better during the World Championships."

Blichfeldt also complained of the intense cold conditions, something most players have been concerned about.

Delhi is facing a more-than-usual severe winter.

The competition has been moved from the KD Jadhav hall to the larger main stadium as a test event for the World Championships in August.

BAI secretary Sanjay Mishra countered Blichfeldt's complaints. "Only one player has had a problem, while others have appreciated the facilities. Her compatriot Viktor Axelsen has been coming for almost a decade and has won here multiple times.

"As for the cold, we are using heaters as well to make things comfortable, but the weather is not in our control. The reason we are holding this event here is to make sure there are no issues during the World Championships. We are making note of every small thing to ensure they are taken care of by then," Sanjay told The Hindu.

World T20: Common sense and decency can still win the day

BETWEEN WICKETS
Suresh Menon

While India and Bangladesh wait to see who will blink first, the International Cricket Council has made it clear that there is no security threat in India.

This is Bangladesh's reason for not wishing to come to India for their World T20 matches commencing next month. It has weakened the former's case while strengthening the latter's resolve.

Bangladesh's hasty announcement followed India's hasty announcement to drop their bowler Mustafizur Rahman from the IPL after he had been picked in the auction. Storms have a way of spreading beyond the teacups where they originate. As the larger country with greater resources and a higher ranking, India might have been expected to act with better understanding and tolerance. But the Board of Control for Cricket in India allowed itself to be bullied by the government into dropping Mustafizur.

The player had nothing to do with the violence in Bangladesh which claimed Hindu lives. Nor should India's foreign policy be decided by trolls on social media – it was a message here that set the ball rolling. But such niceties tend to be ignored in the 'mine-is-bigger-than-yours' type of street fight. National pride is often so brittle.

Bangladesh fans have been allegedly manhandled in India in recent years – in Kanpur at a Test and in Pune during the World Cup. The stories kept changing, however. The potential for crowd trouble exists anywhere in the world. Playing in southern India reduces that possibility, but the ICC has to make that call.

Brinkmanship

Brinkmanship comes easily to governments and sports bodies (sometimes they are the same). It doesn't take a professional logician to work out that the side which has more to lose will ultimately give in. Bangladesh are ranked tenth in the world while India are No.1, so the arithmetic is not difficult. Still, there might be political mileage to be gained from standing up to the bigger country. Confronting the weaker in similar style does not carry the same traction.

Former Bangladesh skipper Tamim Iqbal's has been a rare voice of reason in all this. He has urged his cricket board to avoid being driven by "public emotion" while deciding, and to be aware that a wrong decision could have an "impact 10 years down the line".

Bangladesh can point to the fact that every time India refused to play an ICC tournament in Pakistan, they were allowed to play their matches in either the UAE or Sri Lanka. But that will not do them much good. To equate sporting responses with national pride (India have done this too, but they are confident of getting away with it) is both silly and dangerous. And if politicians – in this case the advisor to Bangladesh's sports ministry – take a hard stance, they do their country's sport much harm.

The situation should never have been allowed to get this far. The BCCI, its arm twisted by the government, should not have in turn twisted the arm of Kolkata Knight Riders and Shah Rukh Khan into dropping Mustafizur.

If Bangladesh had a genuine issue with security, a quiet word with the BCCI and the ICC might led to a shift in the venues of their matches. Such diplomacy should be conducted behind closed doors and not in the full glare of publicity for two reasons. One, it tends to raise the temperature till the issue becomes unbearably hot. Two, when the decision goes against one side, it makes them look ridiculous. A series of wrongs do not make a right.

The World T20 commences on February 7, so common sense and decency might still win the day. The ICC being neither a proactive body nor one that reacts quickly to developing situations, has been kowtowing to the BCCI for so long that most do not see these as separate entities. If the BCCI keeps quiet, it will be up to the Bangladesh Cricket Board to ignore the perceived insult, forget national pride and change its mind. There will be talk of cricket winning, of India's kindness and Bangladesh's ability to see the bigger picture.

Whatever happens can be spun to favour one or both of the countries or indeed the ICC. After all, finding scapegoats is a pastime for the apparently slighted.

Australia captain Healy to retire after the India series

The 35-year-old wicketkeeper-batter has been playing for her country for the past 16 years; taking over as full-time skipper in 2023, she led the side to a historic 16-0 whitewash of England last year

Australia captain Alyssa Healy said on Tuesday she will retire from cricket in March after the team's home series with India, ending a storied career.

The 35-year-old wicketkeeper-batter has been playing for her country for the past 16 years since making her debut as a teenager in 2010.

She has played almost 300 matches across all formats, blasting more than 7,000 runs and effecting 275 dismissals.

"It's with mixed emotions that the upcoming India series will be my last for Australia," said Healy, whose husband is Australia pace spearhead Mitchell Starc.

"I'm still passionate about playing for Australia, but I've somewhat lost that competitive edge that's kept me driven since the start, so the time feels right to call it a day.

"Representing my country has been an incredible honour and I'm grateful for one last series in the green and gold."

Taking over as full-time Australia captain in 2023 from Meg Lanning, Healy famously led the side to a historic 16-0 whitewash of England last year.

One of the most destructive batters and finest wicketkeepers in world cricket, she has been part of eight-World Cup-winning campaigns.

"Alyssa is one of the all-time greats of the game and has made an immeasurable contribution both on and off the field over her 15-year career," said Cricket Australia chief Todd Greenberg. "On behalf of Australian cricket, I'd like to thank Alyssa and congratulate her on an incredible career that has inspired so many and changed the game for the better."

Healy, the niece of Australian Test great Ian Healy, was in the commentary box during the Australian men's recent 4-1 Ashes thumping of England and is expected to transition to a broadcasting career.

The February-March series with India features three T20Is, two one-dayers and a one-off Test in Perth. Healy will only play the ODIs and the Test.

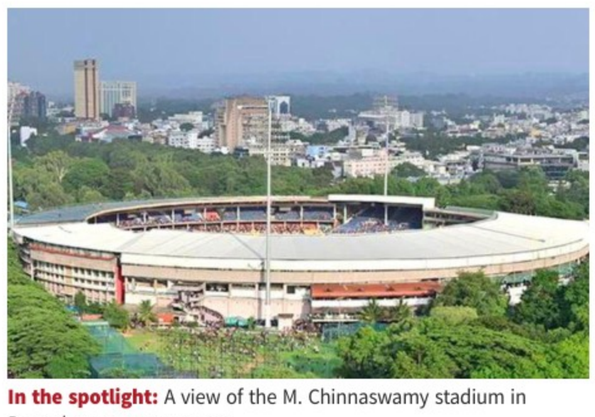
Decision on hosting RCB's home matches at Chinnaswamy Stadium in the coming week

N. Sudarshan
BENGALURU

A final decision on whether defending Indian Premier League champion Royal Challengers Bengaluru will play its home matches at the M. Chinnaswamy Stadium is likely to be made in the coming week.

Ever since the Maharashtra Cricket Association put out a press release earlier this month thanking RCB for a recce of the MCA stadium in Pune, there have been heightened rumours about the franchise shifting its matches out of the Garden City.

The M. Chinnaswamy Stadium has been in the dock ever since 11 people died in a stampede during RCB's title-winning celebrations on June 4, 2025. Hosting matches there is conditional to the Karnataka State Cricket Association (KSCA) implementing the recommendations of the Justice Michael D'Cunha report, formulated as part of the investigation into the tragedy.



In the spotlight: A view of the M. Chinnaswamy stadium in Bengaluru. K. MURALI KUMAR

Recently, the State government denied permission to hold Vijay Hazare Trophy matches citing non-compliance, which meant Virat Kohli played two games for Delhi behind closed doors at the BCCI's Centre of Excellence in the city's outskirts.

Even Karnataka's upcoming Ranji Trophy match against Madhya Pradesh from January 22 will be held at the Alur Grounds.

Vinay Mruthyunjaya, KSCA's official spokesperson, told The Hindu on Tuesday that talks were ongoing with RCB and that there was no official confirmation about the franchise's matches moving out of Bengaluru.

"We will be able to provide an official statement next week," he said. "With regards to the Ranji Trophy match, Chinnaswamy Stadium was never in the picture because a lot of preparatory work is going on."

Kuttappa back as men's boxing team head coach

Press Trust of India
NEW DELHI

Dronacharya awardee C.A. Kuttappa has returned as the head coach of the Indian men's boxing team for a third stint, the Boxing Federation of India confirmed on Tuesday.

The Services man replaces SAI Rohtak coach Dharmender Yadav, who was appointed last year. Dharmender, however, will continue to be part of the men's coaching setup.

AIFF finalises ISL charter

FOOTBALL

Neeladri Bhattacharjee

The AIFF finalised the Indian Super League charter, starting with the 2026-27 season, on Tuesday. The charter has now been sent to all clubs for feedback.

Planned for a 20-season cycle, the ISL will be run by a governing council and a management committee. The council – chaired by AIFF president/vice-president – will comprise 22 members, 14 of whom will be from each of the clubs, and three will be from the commercial partner.

The AIFF president/secretary general, vice-president and treasurer will complete the roster, along with two independent members, one nominated by the AIFF and another by the clubs.

▼ Planned for a 20-season cycle, the ISL will be run by a governing council and a management committee

The committee will run ISL's local operations under the council's supervision.

The AIFF secretary general/deputy secretary general will chair this committee and will also have the head of competitions and the head of strategy from the federation.

The committee's eight remaining spots will be for ISL clubs (five) and the commercial partner (three). Among club representatives, three will be mutually selected by majority (by all clubs), and two will be from the top two teams in the season prior (can change annually).

The tenure of each member of the council (excluding club representatives unless there is a change in control of the club) and committee will be for three ISL seasons, commencing from the season before which they are appointed.

No club representative should be on the committee for two terms unless they have served a cooling period of three seasons between such terms.
